Film Paul Read, Mark-Paul Meyer, 2000-08-14 This is the first book to bring together the work of a modern motion picture film laboratory together with the specialist techniques for preservation and restoration of archival film The books data has its origins in a training programme called FILM which was written by members of the Gamma Group with funding from the EU fund Force The committee comprised senior film archivists and technicians in charge of film conservation departments or working film laboratories within national film archives together with technicians from commercial laboratories which specialise in archival film conservation and who do not work for national and local archives The final group consisted of many of the most experienced individuals in their fields Restoration of Motion Picture Film is an extremely informative well researched book which is an unmissable addition to the bookshelves of conservators archivists and curators worldwide Film history and film conservation students will also find it of great interest and use Only book in English on this subject Prepared by leading specialists in their field Includes coverage of digital technology The Cinema in Flux Lenny Lipton, 2021-04-07 The first of its kind this book traces the evolution of motion picture technology in its entirety Beginning with Huygens magic lantern and ending in the current electronic era it explains cinema s scientific foundations and the development of parallel enabling technologies alongside the lives of the innovators Product development issues business and marketplace factors the interaction of aesthetic and technological demands and the patent system all play key roles in the tale The topics are covered sequentially with detailed discussion of the transition from the magic lantern to Edison s invention of the 35mm camera the development of the celluloid cinema and the transition from celluloid to digital Unique and essential reading from a lifetime innovator in the field of cinema technology this engaging and well illustrated book will appeal to anyone interested in the history and science of cinema from movie buffs to academics and members of the motion picture industry A New History of German Cinema Jennifer M. Kapczynski, Michael David Richardson, 2012 A dynamic event centered exploration of the hundred year history of German language film This dynamic event centered anthology offers a new understanding of the hundred year history of German language film from the earliest days of the Kintopp to contemporary productions like The Lives of Others Each of the more than eighty essays takes a key date as its starting point and explores its significance for German film history pursuing its relationship with its social political and aesthetic moment While the essays offer ample temporal and topical spread this book emphasizes the juxtaposition of famous and unknown stories granting attention to a wide range of cinematic events Brief section introductions provide a larger historical and film historical framework that illuminates the essays within it offering both scholars and the general reader a setting for the individual texts and figures under investigation Cross references to other essays in the book are included at the close of each entry encouraging readers not only to pursue familiar trajectories in the development of German film but also to trace particular figures and motifs across genres and historical periods Together the contributions offer a new view of the multiple intersecting narratives that make up German language cinema The constellation that is thus established challenges unidirectional narratives of German film history and charts new ways of thinking about film historiography more broadly Jennifer Kapczynski is Associate Professor of German at Washington University St Louis and Michael Richardson is Associate Professor of German at Ithaca College
