

The Mourning—Liberation Process in Health and Disease

*George H. Pollock, M.D., Ph.D.

My research on the mourning—liberation process has been ongoing for over 30 years. As new questions occurred and as presumptive answers were obtained, new studies were and are still being undertaken. The research has taken me down various paths, some unexpected and nonpredictable. The research has made use of clinical data primarily. These were derived from my own life experiences, from observations of my patients, from consultations, from material provided me by my supervisees, by colleagues who shared their knowledge and personal experiences with me. These data were also provided by participants in clinical conferences in which the focus was on loss—abandonment—change and from studies in the scientific literature and that of the humanities (world literature, poetry, drama, art, music, sculpture, and philosophy) and from the social sciences (anthropology, history, sociology, and political science). My ongoing investigations of autobiography and biography—forms of outcome follow-up studies—have been most interesting and enjoyable. For example, comparative biographies and autobiographies in which different biographers writing about the same individual reveal the errors, distortions, and omissions in other biographies indicate that studies of biographers and autobiographers themselves may be a fruitful undertaking. As in all creations, autobiographic factors play a role in the outcome product. My research on the mourning—liberation process began in 1956, when I suffered the unexpected loss through death of my mother. I had not had losses from death previously, and despite my clinical work and personal contacts with friends who had such losses, my personal experience was something I had never had to deal with so directly and with so many different feelings and reactions. I studied myself throughout my period of bereavement and kept careful notes of my own dreams, fantasies, feelings, behavior, affects, memories, and reactions to and with significant others. I also spoke with members of my family and obtained information about their reactions. These family members included caregivers this book provides the most up to date theory and research in grief to help inform their care of others Through exploration of critical topics including attachment to God meaning making and religious coping in grief readers are brought right to the heart of a contemporary understanding of grief Coping With Loss Susan Nolen-Hoeksema, Judith Larson, Judith M. Larson, 2013-01-11 Coping With Loss describes the many ways in which people cope with the death of someone they love Most earlier books on bereavement have fallen into two categories distillations of the clinical experience of individual therapists or collections of chapters reporting the results of empirical studies Each category is valuable but has tended to serve a narrow group of readers practitioners with particular theoretical orientations or researchers in quest of the latest findings Coauthored by a leading research psychologist and an experienced therapist who specializes in bereavement education and intervention this book is different The authors weave together the strands of theory research and clinical wisdom into a seamless and readable narrative While they discuss previous work they also present new data never before published from one of the largest studies of bereaved people ever conducted the Bereavement Coping Project Unlike most studies to date which focused on only one type of bereaved group usually widows or widowers the Bereavement Coping Project examined the experiences of several different groups during the first 18 months after the death The groups included those who had lost a spouse a parent an adult sibling or a child and those who had lost their significant other to cancer or cardiovascular disease on one hand as opposed to the stigmatized disease of AIDS on the other The book begins with a critical overview of theories of bereavement succeeding chapters explore in depth the impact of specific types of loss the impact of particular coping strategies on recovery the impact of social supports and religion and the special cases of children and of people who seem to grow and change for the better after a loss A final chapter considers implications for intervention with bereaved people Each chapter is richly illuminated with real life examples throughout and ends with a section called Voices in which bereaved people describe their various attempts to cope in their own words Insightful and informative

Siblings in the Unconscious and Psychopathology Gabriele Ast, Vamik D. Volkan, 2018-05-01 This book examines adults identifications and internal relationships with their siblings mental representations The authors believe that the best way to illustrate clinical formulations and psychoanalytic theoretical concepts is to provide detailed clinical data The influence of childhood sibling experiences and associated unconscious fantasies in their own right in adults personality characteristics behaviour patterns and symptoms are presented from seventeen case reports Clinicians who have patients with fear of pregnancy claustrophobia incestuous fantasies extreme dependency on or murderous rage against siblings guilt due to the death of a sister or brother in childhood replacement child syndrome history of adoption certain types of animal phobias and related issues will find this volume most helpful The authors have made a rare but needed psychoanalytic contribution that examines mental representations of sisters and brothers in our daily lives The Course of Life, 1980

Sibling Loss Joanna H. Fanos, 2014-02-04 Despite the rise of clinical interest in posttraumatic stress disorder and traumatic stress in children there has been little attention paid to the impact of sibling death as a traumatic event Although there is much evidence that children suffer long lasting consequences of such trauma as divorce or the loss of a parent the loss of a sibling has not been the topic of substantial clinical or research attention The sibling relationship has only begun to receive research and theoretical attention The complexities of the sibling bond as it changes and evolves over the life span have only begun to be explored The death of a child has generally been considered one of the most stressful events encountered by families in our society The chronicity of illnesses such as cystic fibrosis is in a sense new an outgrowth of recent advances in medical treatment which have considerably extended the lives of children stricken with leukemia cystic fibrosis HIV infection diabetes and others This book explores the long term consequences of chronic illness followed by the death of a sibling on adult adjustment The illness and loss of the child will have a direct impact on the siblings dependent upon their own capacity to give meaning to its occurrence and to mourn the loss effectively In addition the sibling's world will be inexorably shaped by the handling of the illness and loss by the parents

Mended by the Muse: Creative Transformations of Trauma Sophia Richman, 2014-03-21 Mended by the Muse: Creative Transformations of Trauma is an in-depth exploration of the relationship between trauma and creativity. It is about art in the service of healing, mourning, and memorialization. This book addresses the questions of how artistic expression facilitates the healing process, what the therapeutic action of art is, and if there is a relationship between mental instability and creativity. It also asks how self-analysis through art-making can be integrated with psychoanalytic work in order to enrich and facilitate emotional growth. Drawing on four decades of clinical practice and a critical reading of creativity literature, Sophia Richman presents a new theory of the creative process whose core components are relational conceptualizations of dissociation and witnessing. This is an interdisciplinary book which draws inspiration from life histories, clinical case material, neuroscience, and interviews with creators as well as from various art forms such as film, literature, paintings, and music. Some areas of discussion include art born of genocide, confrontation with mortality in illness and aging, and the clinical implications of memoirs written by psychoanalysts. Visual images are interspersed throughout the text that illustrate the reverberations of trauma and its creative transformation in the work of featured artists. Mended by the Muse: Creative Transformations of Trauma powerfully articulates how creative action is one of the most effective ways of coping with trauma and its aftershocks; it is in art in all its forms that sorrow is given shape and meaning. Here Sophia Richman shows how art helps to master the chaos that follows in the wake of tragedy, how it restores continuity, connection, and the will for a more fully lived life. This book is written for psychoanalysts as well as for other mental health professionals who practice and teach in academic settings. It will also be of interest to graduate and postgraduate students and will be relevant for artists who seek a better understanding of the creative process.

Homicide Survivors Judie Bucholz, 2002-06-15 Homicide Survivors: Misunderstood Grievors is about families that have faced murder and how they have dealt with the trauma. It offers an interpretation of personal accounts of homicide survivors in order to understand the particular nature of homicide bereavement. The author herself, a homicide survivor, Judie Bucholz, offers a unique perspective and experiential base for examining the phenomenon of homicide bereavement. Her intent is to help the reader understand the homicide griever's situation both as one who grieves and one who grieves within a social context as one who confronts horrific death at the personal level as well as at the social level

The Race Against Time Robert A. Nemiroff, Calvin A. Colarusso, 2013-11-21 This is the second book in the pioneering investigation of adult development by Robert A. Nemiroff and Calvin A. Colarusso. The first, Adult Development: A New Dimension in Psychodynamic Theory and Practice, arrived to critical acclaim in 1981. It presented a psychodynamic theory of development during the second half of life and a model of normal adult functioning. This book is the logical sequel, expanding and elaborating the original formulations and applying them to the clinical practice of psychotherapy and psychoanalysis. Nemiroff and Colarusso demonstrate that these are appropriate techniques for patients in the second half of life regardless of age. They lay to rest many stereotypes and myths that have long interfered with the dynamic treatment of older patients and they propose exciting new conceptualizations such as that of adult developmental arrests. The genetic approach reaches beyond childhood and adolescence and takes on important new meaning by incorporating an adult developmental past that influences both psychopathology and transference. The relationship between theory and therapy is richly demonstrated in the clinical presentations including ten detailed case histories of patients between the ages of 40 and 80. These and other clinical discussions provide ample evidence that a psychodynamic approach that is based on a sound adult developmental psychology can be extraordinarily effective. They also demonstrate both the similarities and differences in working with older versus younger patients. This work is a major contribution in a long neglected dimension of clinical psychiatry.
