Soulfaring Cintra Pemberton, 1999-10 Pilgrimage going to ancient holy sites in search of God has become increasingly popular for people seeking to deepen their relationship with the Holy Sister Cintra Pemberton seeks to enrich the experiences of today's pilgrims by helping them draw on the history of pilgrimage itself as well as by suggesting particularly rich sites to visit Part One of Soulfaring explores the history of pilgrimage beginning in Celtic times and moving through the early Christian period the Middle Ages and even the revival of pilgrimage today Part Two explores fifteen sites in Wales Ireland Scotland and the Isle of Man Each of the descriptions of the various sites includes not only suggestions of what may be seen there but the author's personal meditations on the experience of the Holy in each place

Field Manual for the Archaeology of Ritual, Religion, and Magic C. Riley Augé, 2022-07-08 By bringing together in one place specific objects materials and features indicating ritual religious or magical belief used by people around the world and through time this tool will assist archaeologists in identifying evidence of belief related behaviors and broadening their understanding of how those behaviors may also be seen through less obvious evidential lines Instruction and templates for recording typologizing classifying and analyzing ritual or magico religious material culture are also provided to guide researchers in the survey collection and cataloging processes The bulleted formatting and topical range make this a highly accessible work while providing an incredible wealth of information in a single volume

A Corpus of Early Medieval Inscribed Stones and Stone Sculpture in Wales: South-west Wales Mark Redknap, Nancy Edwards, 2007 Inscribed stones and stone sculpture form the most prolific body of material evidence from early medieval Wales c AD 400 1100 Crucial to our understanding of the region's degree of continuity with the preceding Roman culture Irish settlement and the development of the early Welsh kingdoms these Latin or Old Irish inscribed memorial stones instruct us on the language literacy and development of the church among other areas These two volumes allow us to identify a range of early medieval ecclesiastical sites within a wider landscape and the trace the church's patronage by the secular elite Accompanied by more than 170 line drawings and elaborate illustrations this corpus provides fresh new studies of these aspects revised interpretations of the stones and many previously unpublished and newly discovered examples Monuments and Landscape in Atlantic Europe Chris Scarre, 2005-07-08

Atlantic Europe is the zone par excellence of megalithic monuments which encompass a wide range of earthen and stone constructions from impressive stone circles to modest chambered tombs A single basic concept lies behind this volume that the intrinsic qualities encountered within the diverse landscapes of Atlantic Europe both informed the settings chosen for the monuments and played a role in determining their form and visual appearance Monuments and Landscape in Atlantic Europe goes significantly beyond the limits of existing debate by inviting archaeologists from different countries with the Atlantic zone including Britain France Ireland Spain and Sweden to examine the relationship between landscape features and prehistoric monuments in their specialist regions By placing the issue within a broader regional and intellectual context the authors illustrate the diversity of current archaeological ideas and approaches converging around this central theme
