Star Carr Volume 2 Nicky Milner, Chantal Conneller, Barry Taylor, 2018-04-12 This second volume of Star Carr provides detail on specific areas of research around the Star Carr site one of the most important Mesolithic sites in Europe Discovered in the late 1940s by John Moore and then excavated by Grahame Clark from 1949-1951 the site is famous in the archaeological world for its wealth of rare organic remains including significant wooden artefacts The 2003-2015 excavations directed by Conneller, Milner and Taylor explored how the site was used In use for around 800 years the Star Carr site is much larger and more complex than ever imagined This volume looks in detail at focused areas of research including wooden artefacts antler headdresses structures environmental and climate change data plant and animal remains found at the site and sediment data

Human Interactions with the Geosphere Lucy Wilson, 2011 Human impact on our environment is not a new phenomenon For millennia humans have been coping with or provoking environmental change We have exploited extracted over used but also in many cases nurtured the resources that the geosphere offers Geoarchaeology studies the traces of human interactions with the geosphere and provides the key to recognizing landscape and environmental change human impacts and the effects of environmental change on human societies This collection of papers from around the world includes case studies and broader reviews covering the time period since before modern human beings came into existence up until the present day To understand ourselves we need to understand that our world is constantly changing and that change is dynamic and complex Geoarchaeology provides an inclusive and long term view of human geosphere interactions and serves as a valuable aid to those who try to determine sustainable policies for the future Star Carr in Context Paul Mellars, Petra Dark, 1998 Grahame Clark's classic excavations at Star Carr in 1945-51 were a model for their time but left many important questions unanswered New research has shown that the site is almost 1000 years older than previously believed Studies have demonstrated a complex and repeated pattern of occupation spanning at least three centuries and have documented evidence for the frequent and apparently deliberate burning of the local reedswamp vegetation to improve lake access and perhaps attract animal populations The new research has also revealed evidence for the construction of a substantial wooden trackway leading to the lake edge the oldest evidence for systematic carpentry so far documented in Europe This report shows how scientific techniques and theoretical approaches can shed entirely new light on a seemingly well documented site

Environment, Archaeology and Landscape: Papers in honour of Professor Martin Bell Catherine Barnett, Thomas Walker, 2021-10-21 Dedicated to Martin Bell University of Reading this book outlines how wetland and inland environments can be related and investigated using multi method approaches Papers fall under three themes coastal and intertidal archaeology mobility and human environment relationships heritage resource management nature conservation and rewilding

Chronology and Evolution within the Mesolithic of North-West Europe Philippe Crombé, Joris Sergeant, Mark Van Strydonck, 2020-06-12 Since its development in 1949 radiocarbon dating has increasingly been used in prehistoric research in order to get a better grip on the chronology of sites cultures and environmental changes Refinement of the dating sampling and calibration methods has continuously created new and challenging perspectives for absolute dating In these proceedings the focus lies on the contribution of carbon 14 dates in current Mesolithic research in North West Europe Altogether 40 papers dealing with radiocarbon dates from 15 different countries are presented Major themes are the techno technological evolution of lithic and bone industries changes in settlement patterns burial practices demography and subsistence human impact on the Mesolithic environment and the neolithisation process Some papers also deal with more methodological aspects of carbon 14 dating e g calculation of various reservoir effects the use of cumulative calibrated probability distributions and related techniques e g stable isotope analysis for palaeodiet reconstruction

Quaternary of Northern England David Huddart, Neil F. Glasser, 2002 Describes 70 Geological Conservation Review sites to understand how climatic changes affected the natural environment of Cheviots Pennines the Lake District Peak District North Yorkshire Moors and the surrounding areas This book also includes discussion of the evidence for Tertiary and Early Pleistocene landscape evolution

Prehistoric Britain Joshua Pollard, 2008-06-23 Informed by the latest research and in depth analysis Prehistoric Britain provides students and scholars alike with a fascinating overview of the development of human societies in Britain from the Upper Paleolithic to the end of the Iron Age Offers readers an incisive synthesis and much needed overview of current research themes Includes essays from leading scholars and professionals who address the very latest trends in current research Explores the interpretive debates surrounding major transitions in British prehistory

Wild Harvest Karen Hardy, Lucy Kubiak Martens, 2016-04-20 Plants are fundamental to life they are used by all human groups and most animals They provide raw materials vitamins and essential nutrients and we could not survive without them Yet access to plant use before the Neolithic can be challenging In some places plant remains rarely survive and reconstructing plant use in pre agrarian contexts needs to be conducted using a range of different techniques This lack of visible evidence has led to plants being undervalued both in terms of their contribution to diet and as raw materials This book outlines why the role of plants is required for a better understanding of hominin and pre agrarian human life and it offers a variety of ways in which this can be achieved Wild Harvest is divided into three sections In section 1 each chapter focuses on a specific feature of plant use by humans this covers the role of carbohydrates the need for and effects of processing methods the role of plants in self medication among apes plants as raw materials and the extent of evidence for plant use prior to the development of agriculture in the Near East Section 2 comprises seven chapters which cover different methods available to obtain information on plants and the third section has five chapters each covering a topic related to ethnography ethnohistory or ethnoarchaeology and how these can be used to improve our understanding of the role of plants in the pre agrarian past

Quaternary Vegetation Dynamics of Europe Gerhard Lang, Brigitta Ammann, Karl-Ernst Behre, Willy Tinner, 2023-06-12 Based on palaeoecological studies by many authors this book gives an overview of the changing history of the European plant cover during the past 2.6 million years characterized by numerous cold and warm periods. The period of the last 20,000 years from the Last Glacial Maximum to the present is presented in detail with special emphasis on the vegetation dynamics of Europe, the history of selected woody plants, the development of lakes and bogs and the emergence of European cultural landscapes under the influence of humans over thousands of years. In the analysis of the glacial and interglacial periods, the focus is on the different vegetation developments and the progressive impoverishment of the European flora. Further important topics are the spatio-temporal patterns and causes of long-term vegetation changes, the legacies of disturbances and land use on vegetation composition, the role of palaeoecology in nature conservation and its contribution to ecology and environmental sciences. In addition to recent research results, the book provides an overview of the main palaeoecological research methods. It concludes with a summary of the history of palaeoecology and Quaternary botany. For the first time, a detailed synthesis is presented of the many findings on European vegetation dynamics, which are complex and increasingly difficult to summarize. Numerous figures and tables, many of them original, accompany the text. The bibliography includes over 3,000 publications. This book is primarily intended for students, researchers and practitioners in plant ecology, palaeoecology, palaeoclimatology, forestry, agronomy, Quaternary sciences, climate sciences, biogeography, geography and archaeology.

Prehistoric Coastal Communities Martin Bell, 2007. Providing evidence about prehistoric life in Britain, this book focuses on the little studied communities of the South West and Wales. It offers useful case studies from nationally important Bronze Age sites such as Brean Down on the Somerset Levels.

Archaeology Kevin Greene, Tom Moore, 2010-06-17. This book details modern archaeologists' methods of studying the past, describing basic practical procedures as well as complex scientific techniques used in analysis. It also examines traditional methodology, fieldwork and excavation.

Star Carr Volume 1 Nicky Milner, Chantal Conneller, Barry Taylor, 2018-04-12. This first volume of Star Carr provides an interpretation of the Star Carr site, one of the most important Mesolithic sites in Europe. Discovered in the late 1940s by John Moore and then excavated by Grahame Clark from 1949-1951, the site is famous in the archaeological world for its wealth of rare organic remains, including significant wooden artefacts. However, since the original excavations, there has been much debate about how the site was used: was it a residential base camp, a hunting camp, or even a ritual site? The 2003-2015 excavations, directed by Conneller, Milner and Taylor, aimed to answer these questions. In use for around 8,000 years, the Star Carr site is much larger and more complex than ever imagined. The excavations show that Mesolithic groups were highly invested in this place and continued to occupy the site despite changes in climate. The findings include the oldest evidence for houses in Britain, large wooden platforms along the edge of the lake, antler headdresses and a unique engraved shale pendant, which represents the earliest form of Mesolithic art in Britain. There is evidence for activity areas such as crafts and tool repair associated with structures an axe factory as well as a number of caches New finds of antler frontlets have increased our understanding of the diversity of human interactions with animals If these do not get a gong something will have to be done about archaeology book awards Mike Pitts British Archaeology Despite the degradation these excavations have provided a new understanding of life in the Early Mesolithic particularly enhancing our understanding of how important wood a material rarely recovered was for Mesolithic people The findings challenge many of the preconceived views of this period in terms of the character and scale of activity and the degree of investment in a particular place in the landscape The Story of Starr Carr Nicky Milner,Barry Taylor,Chantal Conneller,2014-02-01 Grahame Clark and His Legacy Arkadiusz Marciniak,John M. Coles,2010 Grahame Clark was a major figure in European archaeology for over 50 years and pioneered work in prehistoric economies and ecology in science based archaeology and in a world view of ancient societies A variety of authorities assess these major contributions and provide discussions about Clark s own colleagues and contemporaries Star Carr J. G. D. Clark,1972 Carchemish in Context Edgar Peltenburg,T. J. Wilkinson,Eleanor Barbanes Wilkinson,2016-05-31 The city of Carchemish in the valley of the Euphrates river can be regarded as one of the iconic sites in the Middle East a mound complex known both for its own intrinsic qualities as the seat of later Hittite power and Neo Hittite kings but also because its history of excavations included well known historical figures such as Leonard Woolley and T E Lawrence However because of its location within the military zone of the Turkish Syrian border the site itself has been inaccessible to archaeologists for more than 90 years Carchemish in Context summarises the results of regional investigations conducted within the Land of Carchemish Project in Syria as well as other archaeological surveys in the region in order to provide a regional historical and archaeological context for the development of the city A synthesis of the history of Carchemish is presented and a regional overview of the Land of Carchemish as it is defined by archaeological features and key historical references through to the early Iron Age Insightful snapshots of the dynamics of an ancient state are revealed which can now be seen to have fluctuated dramatically in size throughout 700 800 years in part depending upon the power of the king of Carchemish or the aggressions of external powers The results from the Project provide an overview of the main trends of settlement in the region over 8000 years using a combination of survey databases to both north and south of the Syrian Turkish border and with a focus on the earlier phases of settlement from the Neolithic until the end of the Bronze Age when Carchemish became an outpost of the Hittite empire The Iron Age is a period blessed by numerous historical records some of which can be traced in the modern landscape Further chapters explore site specific aspects of the regional archaeology including a series of important sites on the Sajur river some of which were positioned along the main campaign routes of the Assyrian kings The close relationship between the nearby Early Bronze Age site of Tell Jerablus Tahtani and Carchemish are examined and the results from the 40 ha Carchemish Outer Town survey described providing important new data sources regarding the layout defenses and dates of occupation of this significant part of the city The Classical Roman Byzantine and Early Islamic occupations are also discussed in relation to what is known of occupation in the surrounding region Beyond the Fertile Crescent: Project background and the late palaeolithic (geological context and technology) Andrew N. Garrard, Brian F. Byrd, 2013 The natural arc of resource rich land which forms the Fertile Crescent of South West Asia is regarded as the earliest centre of village based farming in the world and has been the focus of much of our understanding of the transition from Epipalaeolithic hunter gathers to Neolithic farmers Beyond the Fertile Crescent is the first volume of the Azraq Project a large scale archaeological and palaeoenvironmental survey and excavation project undertaken between 1982 and 1989 in the ecologically diverse sub region of the Azraq Basin in north central Jordan an area rich in Palaeolithic and Neolithic archaeology Beginning with an overview to the Project aims a detailed analysis of past and present environments and land use and the history of excavation in the Basin Beyond the Fertile Crescent explores the geology stratigraphy and dating of the Late Palaeolithic sites and provides a detailed description of the technology and typology of the lithic assemblages from the sites These are then compared with those from the wider Levant in order to explore possible links between technological traditions and social groups in order to understand the evidence for settlement strategies across the region
