Zane Grey's Riders of the Purple Sage Stephen J. May,2021-04-01 His mother was against it but he grew up to be a cowboy anyway Zane Grey was a corn fed mid westerner who ended up an unhappy dentist in New York City After a journey to Arizona and Utah in 1907 he decided he would rather wear chaps and a Stetson than return to a mundane life pulling teeth in Manhattan Thus began his career as a writer Zane Grey faced mountains of rejection and disappointment in publishing his early novels but when Riders of the Purple Sage was published in 1912 and it set in motion the entire Western genre in books movies and eventually country western music It was and remains an epic colorful novel filled with action romance and vivid descriptions of the Old West Drawing on his letters diaries and personal papers the story of his growth as a writer and of the creation of this book is a rags to riches saga sure to appeal to writers of any age history buffs motion picture fans and lovers of music Plus it is a story set against the grandeur and sublimity of the American West

Disney's Live-Action Movie Bombs, 1979-2019 Tyler Mattis,2024-12-26 This book explores the history of Disney s biggest live action movie failures from the late 1970s to the late 2010s That stretch of time was a transformative period in which the company made many financial gains but gradually lost its identity which had largely been synonymous with founder Walt Disney The chapters explain why each movie was made the casting process production details and why each movie failed financially Covered here are cult classics like Tron and Hocus

Pocus alongside more well known bombs like John Carter and The Lone Ranger      Television and the Self Kathleen M. Ryan, Deborah A. Macey, 2013-04-05 Sitting prominently at the hearth of our homes television serves as a voice of our modern time Given our media saturated society and television s prominent voice and place in the home it is likely we learn about our society and selves through these stories These narratives are not simply entertainment but powerful socializing agents that shape and reflect the world and our role in it Television and the Self Knowledge Identity and Media Representation brings together a diverse group of scholars to investigate the role television plays in shaping our understanding of self and family This edited collection s rich and diverse research demonstrates how television plays an important role in negotiating self and goes far beyond the treacly very special episodes found in family sit coms in the 1980s Instead the authors show how television reflects our reality and helps us to sort out what it means to be a twenty first century man or woman      Science Fiction TV J. A Rhetoric of Meanings Gergana Apostolova, 2015-09-04 This book presents an in depth analysis of language's role as the tool and environment for human survival on Earth examining its ability to provide an unlimited space for telling individual stories that bear the knowledge of mankind's self significance The book is the result of a 20 year long composite study of language phenomenology grounded in the interactions of Bulgarian and English approached in a game like fashion where the play with language units transcends levels of meanings based on significances and explored through the four basic avatars of activated language the learner the teacher the translator and the creator of texts The book is divided into three sections the first details the motivation for this study and the design of the method of exploration This is followed by an application of this method to the talkative web in order to find ways of meeting the enormous demand for human content The final section brings together the colourful practices of activated language movement This book is not about the philosophy of language per se It is concerned with the practical field beyond the philosophy of language where the self identification of the Subject is brought to a higher stage of communicative creativity The rhetoric theory of argumentation is argued throughout the book to be the relevant ground for building a holistic tool of language learning where language acquisition is seen as the capability of the subject to construct worlds in a universe whose leading structure involves the rhetoric criteria of ethos pathos and logos on the one hand and the self identifying choice of meanings to situations of complex nature on the other As such the book is primarily concerned with linguistics rhetoric semiotics of culture ethics and language learning viewed through a philosophical preoccupation with humanity
