Britt Bousman, Bradley J. Vierra, 2012-10-22 The end of the Pleistocene era brought dramatic environmental changes to small bands of humans living in North America changes that affected subsistence mobility demography technology and social relations The transition they made from Paleoindian Pleistocene to Archaic Early Holocene societies represents the first major cultural shift that took place solely in the Americas This event which manifested in ways and at times much more varied than often supposed set the stage for the unique developments of behavioral complexity that distinguish later Native American prehistoric societies Using localized studies and broad regional syntheses the contributors to this volume demonstrate the diversity of adaptations to the dynamic and changing environmental and cultural landscapes that occurred between the Pleistocene and early portion of the Holocene. The authors' research areas range from Northern Mexico to Alaska and across the continent to the American Northeast, synthesizing the copious available evidence from well known and recent excavations. With its methodologically and geographically diverse approach, From the Pleistocene to the Holocene: Human Organization and Cultural Transformations in Prehistoric North America provides an overview of the present state of knowledge regarding this crucial transformative period in Native North America. It offers a large scale synthesis of human adaptation, reflects the range of ideas and concepts in current archaeological theoretical approaches, and acts as a springboard for future explanations and models of prehistoric change. Bernard J. Siegel, 1984. Annual compilation of critical articles from all areas of the discipline of anthropology Early Prehistoric Agriculture in the American Southwest Wirt Henry Wills, 1988. This book promises to be pivotal in the current debate about how and why early hunting and gathering peoples adopted domesticated plants. W. H. Wills offers a new model to explain the decision making process that led to this adoption, a model hinging on the argument that the critical value of early domesticated plants was not their productivity but their predicatability. The Archaic Occupation of the Rosemont Area, Northern Santa Rita Mountains, Southeastern Arizona Bruce B.
