Decision Making by the Modern Supreme Court Richard L. Pacelle, Jr, Brett W. Curry, Bryan W. Marshall, 2011-06-13 There are three general models of Supreme Court decision making the legal model the attitudinal model and the strategic model But each is somewhat incomplete This book advances an integrated model of Supreme Court decision making that incorporates variables from each of the three models In examining the modern Supreme Court since Brown v Board of Education the book argues that decisions are a function of the sincere preferences of the justices the nature of precedent and the development of the particular issue as well as separation of powers and the potential constraints posed by the president and Congress To test this model the authors examine all full signed civil liberties and economic cases decisions in the 1953-2000 period Decision Making by the Modern Supreme Court argues and the results confirm that judicial decision making is more nuanced than the attitudinal or legal models have argued in the past

Convinced! Jack Nasher, 2018-11-13 Competence does not speak for itself You can't simply display it you have to draw people's attention to it World renowned negotiation and deception detection expert business professor and mentalist Jack

Nasher offers effective proven techniques to convince others that we are talented trustworthy and yes even brilliant Nasher offers the example of Joshua Bell possibly the world's most famous violinist In January 2007 at rush hour he stepped into a Washington DC subway station dressed like any street busker and began to play a 4 000 000 Stradivarius It was part of an experiment staged by a journalist of the Washington Post who expected Bell's skill alone to attract an immense awed crowd But Bell was generally ignored and when he stopped nobody applauded He made 34 17 The good news is that you don't have to accept obscurity you can positively affect others perception of your talent Whether you're looking for work giving an important presentation seeking clients or customers for your business or vying for a promotion Nasher explains how to use techniques such as expectation management verbal and nonverbal communication the Halo Effect competence framing and the power of nonconformity to gain control of how others perceive you Competence is the most highly valued professional trait But it's not enough to be competent you have to convey your competence With Nasher's help you can showcase your expertise receive the recognition you deserve and achieve lasting success Naval Leadership and Management, 1650-1950

Richard Harding, Helen Doe, 2012 Many works on naval history ascribe success to the special qualities of individual leaders Nelson being the prime example This book in contrast moves away from focusing on Nelson and other leading individuals to explore more fully how naval leadership worked in the context of a large complex globally capable institution It puts forward important original scholarship around four main themes the place of the hero in naval leadership organisational friction in matters of command the role of management capability in the exercise of naval power and the evolution of management and technical training in the Royal Navy Besides providing much new interesting material for naval and maritime historians the book also offers important insights for management and leadership specialists more generally Back cover Recent
