

Notes from the Composer

I have always found the painting, "The Starry Night," by Vincent Van Gogh, fascinating. I decided to write a poem based on the imagery used in the painting, then set it to music. During my research, I also found a quote by Van Gogh that I used as a basis for my poem, For my part, I know nothing with any certainty, but the sight of the stars makes me dream.

I am always looking for ways to collaborate with other teachers. If you are able to collaborate with an art teacher, plan a joint lesson enriching the student's experience with "The Starry Night." The art teacher will focus on the history, technique, and design of the painting and the choral director will focus on the lyrics and music.

Whether you collaborate or introduce "The Starry Night" on your own, begin with the painting. As the poet and composer, have the students focus on:

1. Imagery - What images can be seen in the painting?
2. Colors - What colors are used in the painting? Are any of the colors used in unexpected ways?
3. Adjectives - What adjectives would you use to describe the painting?

Next, have students take their ideas on imagery, color, and adjectives and compare their words to the lyrics in the poem. You could divide the students into small groups - each group compares one section of the lyrics with their responses. Then have the students share their ideas with the class. Students could even write their own poems.

In reviewing the music, have students look for evidence of tone painting, where the music is a direct reflection of the lyrics. One example would be that the right hand piano part begins very high to reflect the idea of night and sky. Also, it might be nice to project the painting on a screen behind the choir during their performance.

I hope you and your students find inspiration in the painting, lyrics, and music in "The Starry Night."
