Paul Sillitoe

The Highlands Papua New Guinea:

The Highlands David Holdsworth,1978 The Evolution of Highland Papua New Guinea Societies D. K. Feil,1987-12-03 D K Feil s study focuses on the divergent regions of the eastern and western highland of Papua New Guinea Architecture of the Central Highlands of Papua New Guinea George Loupis,1984 The Highlands of Papua New Guinea Brian Miller,1983 The Highlands, Papua New Guinea David Keith Holdsworth,1974 Tracing Early Agriculture in the Highlands of New Guinea Tim Denham,2018-06-28 In this book historical narratives chart how people created forms of agriculture in the highlands of New Guinea and how these practices were transformed through time The intention is twofold to clearly establish New Guinea as a region of early agricultural development and plant domestication and to develop a contingent practice based interpretation of early agriculture that has broader application to other regions of the world The multi disciplinary record from the highlands has the potential to challenge and change long held assumptions regarding early agriculture globally which are usually based on domestication Early agriculture in the highlands is charted by an exposition of the practices of plant exploitation and cultivation Practices are ontologically prior because they ultimately produce the phenotypic and genotypic changes in plant species characterised as domestication as well as the social and environmental transformations associated with agriculture They are also methodologically prior because they emplace plants in specific historico geographic contexts The Oxford Handbook of the Archaeology of Indigenous Australia and New Guinea Ian J. McNiven,Bruno David,2023 The Oxford Handbook of the Archaeology of Indigenous Australia and New Guinea reviews and brings together the latest findings on the archaeology of the Australia New Guinea region In 42 new chapters commissioned for this book 77 leading researchers present the archaeological evidence for Australia and New Guinea s deep time history The stories told reveal the astounding richness of Australia and New Guinea s Indigenous cultural history stories of tens of thousands of years of Aboriginal Torres Strait Islander and New Guinean adaptation cultural know how and creative ingenuity Food and Agriculture in Papua New Guinea R. Michael Bourke,Tracy Harwood,2009-08-01 Agriculture dominates the rural economy of Papua New Guinea PNG More than five million rural dwellers 80% of the population earn a living from subsistence agriculture and selling crops in domestic and international markets Many aspects of agriculture in PNG are described in this data rich book Topics include agricultural environments in which crops are grown production of food crops cash crops and animals land use soils demography migration the macro economic environment gender issues governance of agricultural institutions and transport The history of agriculture over the 50 000 years that PNG has been occupied by humans is summarised Much of the information presented is not readily available within PNG The book contains results of many new analyses including a food budget for the entire nation The text is supported by 165 tables and 215 maps and figures Language Maps of the Highland Provinces, Papua New Guinea Stephen Adolphe Wurm,1978 Highland Peoples of New Guinea Paula Brown,1978-06-30 Fifty years ago the New Guinea highlands were isolated and unknown to outsiders As the highland peoples of New Guinea are among the last large groups to be brought into the world community they are of major interest to ecologists social anthropologists and cultural historians This study synthesises previous anthropological research on the New Guinea highland peoples and cultures and demonstrates the interrelations of ecological adaptation population and society In describing analysing and comparing the technology culture and community life of peoples of the highland and the highland fringe Professor Brown shows the special character of these societies which have developed in isolation In addition to examining the unique regional development of the New Guinea highland peoples this book a study in ecological and social anthropology brings together these two analytical fields and demonstrates their interrelationships The Origins And Spread Of Agriculture And Pastoralism In Eurasia David R. Harris, 2024-11-01 As the first book to examine the origins and spread of agriculture and pastoralism in Europe and Asia as a whole this major contribution should be essential reading for archaeologists anthropologists biologists and geographers Adopting a novel approach to the subject the authors examine it first in terms of seven different disciplinary perspectives social ecological genetic linguistic biomolecular epidemiological and geographical Then 20 case studies are presented which are based primarily on archaeological and biological evidence and which relate to three major regions Southwest Asia Europe and Central Asia to the Pacific The book concludes with an overview of Eurasia as a whole The transition from hunting and gathering to agriculture had revolutionary consequences for human society It led to the emergence of urban civilizations and ultimately to humanity's almost complete dependence on relatively few domesticated animals and plants The subject has been much studied but the results have tended to be interpreted largely in terms of local cultural sequences with insufficient comparison made with evidence from other areas In contrast this book provides a continental scale framework with its scope extended to pastoralism because in Eurasia both the raising of livestock and the cultivation of crops were integral components of the agricultural revolution from its inception some 10 000 years ago Comprehensive and authoritative The Origins and Spread of Agriculture and Pastoralism in Eurasia should appeal strongly to the wide readership of students and specialists concerned with the prehistoric antecedents of modern civilization Roots of the Earth Paul Sillitoe, 1983

Middle Kingdom James Sinclair, 2016 This is an account of the discovery exploration pacification and development of the Eastern Western and Southern Highlands Simbu and Enga Provinces of Papua New Guinea from their beginnings to independence in September 1975 the colonial era New Guinea was the last of the great land masses of the world to be discovered and explored by Europeans But this is a European conceit for Indonesians and Asians knew of the existence of New Guinea and had visited its shores long before the first Europeans sighted the island in 1512 However this is a history of the colonial period A lot of fresh research into PNG Highlands history has been conducted in recent decades by the author and a great many others Sinclair has endeavoured to bring as much as possible of it together in a very detailed book which goes far beyond sagas of exploration It documents the growth and development through administration industry and all that is associated with the establishment of a growing infrastructure The author personally knew many of the great figures in Highlands exploration notable Mick and Dan Leahy he also new Jim and Paddy Jim Taylor and Ivan and Claude Champion They have all passed on but not before telling Jim Sinclair their stories of discovery Out of Place Michael Goddard,2011-04-01 The Kakoli of the Western Highlands of Papua New Guinea PNG the focus of this study did not traditionally have a concept of mental illness They classified madness according to social behaviour not mental pathology Moreover their conception of the person did not recognise the same physical and mental categories that inform Western medical science and psychiatry in particular was not officially introduced to PNG until the late 1950s Its practitioners claimed that it could adequately accommodate the cultural variation among Melanesian societies This book compares the intent and practice of transcultural psychiatry with Kakoli interpretations of and responses to madness showing the reasons for their occasional recourse to psychiatric services Episodes involving madness as defined by the Kakoli themselves are described in order to offer a context for the historical lifeworld and praxis of the community and raise fundamental questions about whether a culturally sensitive psychiatry is possible in the Melanesian context Papua New Guinea Kenneth Good,1986 Papua New Guinea ,1998 Conflict and Resource Development in the Southern Highlands of Papua New Guinea Nicole Haley,Ron May,2007-11-01 The Southern Highlands is one of Papua New Guinea s most resource rich provinces but for a number of years the province has been riven by conflict Longstanding inter group rivalries briefly set aside during the colonial period have been compounded by competition for the benefits provided by the modern state and by fighting over the distribution of returns from the several big mining and petroleum projects located within the province or impinging upon it Deaths from the various conflicts over the past decade number in the hundreds As a result of inter group fighting criminal activity and vandalism a number of businesses have withdrawn from the province Roadblocks and ambushes have made travel dangerous in many parts and expatriate missionaries and aid workers have left Many public servants have abandoned their posts with the result that state services are not provided Corruption is rife Police are often reluctant to act because they are outnumbered and outgunned This volume brings together a number of authors with deep experience of the Southern Highlands to examine the underlying dynamics of resource development and conflict in the province Its primary purpose is to provide some background to recent events but the authors also explore possible approaches to limiting the human and economic costs of the ongoing conflict and breakdown of governance A History of the Coffee Industry in Papua New Guinea Ian V. Cartledge,1978 Papua and New Guinea Medical Journal ,2006 Aquaculture in Papua New Guinea Paul T. Smith,2007 CD ROM contains 177 documents that were written between 1950 and 2005 by a broad range of authors all sharing a passion for aquaculture and inland fisheries in Papua New Guinea
