Today's terrorists are often part of a global network of highly sophisticated methodical comprehensive well funded terrorist organizations whose perversions of their faiths allow them to justify even the most heinous of acts. It stands to reason that our response must likewise be global sophisticated methodical comprehensive and well funded. We have at our disposal an arsenal of the finest most powerful weapons available to fight terrorism. Not bombs and bullets but people experts in diplomacy intelligence gathering computers anthropology economics communications crisis management arbitration languages foreign relations and dozens of other fields that can contribute to the all important task of identifying stopping and preventing terrorism. If there were a right answer to how best to deal with global terrorism surely we would have found it by now. But just as surely finding the solution must lie in asking the right questions.

Terrorism in America Kevin Borgeson, Robin Valeri, 2009 Using existing FBI data and ethnographic data this edition compares and contrasts domestic sources of terrorism in the United States to those in other countries while also discussing efforts by domestic terrorists to form alliances with foreign groups.

Terrorism and the Press Brooke Barnett, Amy Reynolds, 2009 Many books have been written about the press and terrorism particularly since September 11th but this is the first press focused exploration of their relationship. Drawing upon the history of terrorism mass communication research media theory and journalism practice this book examines how the press reports terrorism and how that reporting varies depending on the medium and location. Examining the differences in reporting globally and historically within different media and government systems Terrorism and the Press provides insights for how in the future we can better navigate the relationship between the press government and audience when terrorists attack.
