The Catholic Church Walter Kasper, 2015-02-26 Walter Kasper is already well known and loved throughout the English speaking world. He has held high office in the Vatican but until his recent retirement has felt constrained from publishing what he really thinks and his vision of the Church for the future. Kasper brings to conclusion a project that has been pursued for years as it joins together his greatest monographs on the subject of God's teaching and Christology. The book covers three main topics: Nature, Reality and the Mission of the Church. The introductory section is autobiographical and the reader can see Kasper's personal and theological way in to and with the Church. He develops the actual ecclesiological exegesis for Kasper: the representation of the Being of the Church is not about empirical description but rather a testimony of being. He emphasizes that nobody is able to apply the stereotypical and idealistic image of the heavens to the critical acknowledgement of the church's present. The program of the Church is ultimately not self-directed but rather remains oriented towards the finalization of the arrival of the kingdom of God and the spiritual healing of the human race.

The Nature and Mission of the Church According to Bishop John A. T. Robinson Richard P. McBrien, 1966

The Nature and Mission of Theology Joseph Ratzinger, 2011-01-06 As Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger wrote this book in response to the dialogue going on today concerning theology and the clarification of its methods, its mission and its limits which he thinks has become urgent. Ratzinger states: To do theology as the Magisterium understands theology it is not sufficient merely to calculate how much religion can reasonably be expected of man and to utilize bits and pieces of the Christian tradition accordingly. Theology is born when the arbitrary judgment of reason encounters a limit in that we discover something which we have not excogitated ourselves but which has been revealed to us. For this reason not every religious theory has the right to label itself as Christian or Catholic theology simply because it wishes to do so; whoever would lay claim to this title is obligated to accept as meaningful the prior given which goes along with it.

Theological Education for the Mission of the Church in India, 1947-1987 Siga Arles, 1991 Indian National independence and Church Union in the Church of South India both in 1947 demanded a rethinking on the part of the Indian Christians with regard to the mission of the Church in India: the meaning and methods of ministry and the role of theological education. This book is a study of the quest for relevance in Indian theological education during the period 1947 to 1987. This book studies concepts of mission such as the traditional evangelization and the modern participation in nation building; ministry as changing from the domination of male clergy to the participation of the laity and women; theological education as equipment of the whole church for wider involvement in Indian society within the context of poverty and religious pluralism. It deals with the four decades of thought development and indigenous experimentations simultaneously looking at the effect of the evangelical and ecumenical division of the church's understanding of her mission and ministry in India. While studying several seminaries, Tamilnadu Theological Seminary is used as a case to illustrate the continuing process of the quest for relevance An extensive bibliography notes on people referred and a directory of theological colleges are additional resources in this work      The Nature and Mission of the Church Mareleney E. Rodríguez, 1995
