Hollywood on the Hudson Richard Koszarski, 2008 Thomas Edison invented his motion picture system in New Jersey in the 1890s and within a few years most American filmmakers could be found within a mile or two of the Hudson River They planted themselves here because they needed the artistic and entrepreneurial energy that D W Griffith realized New York had in abundance But as the going rate for land and labor skyrocketed and their business grew more industrialized most of them moved out The way most historians explain it the role of New York in the development of American film ends here In Hollywood on the Hudson Richard Koszarski rewrites an important part of the history of American cinema During the 1920s and 1930s film industry executives had centralized the mass production of feature pictures in a series of gigantic film factories scattered across Southern California while maintaining New York as the economic and administrative center But as Koszarski reveals many writers producers and directors also continued to work here especially if their independent vision was too big for the Hollywood production line East Coast filmmakers Oscar Micheaux Rudolph Valentino Ben Hecht Charles MacArthur Paul Robeson Gloria Swanson Max Fleischer and others quietly created a studio system without back lots long term contracts or seasonal production slates They substituted newsreel photography for Hollywood glamour targeted niche audiences instead of middle American families ignored accepted dramatic conventions and pushed the boundaries of motion picture censorship Rebellious and unconventional they saw the New York studios as laboratories not factories and used them to pioneer the development of new technologies from talkies to television new genres new talent and ultimately an entirely new vision of commercial cinema

America the Ingenious Kevin Baker, 2016-10-04 Among the many rewards of America the Ingenious Kevin Baker's survey of Yankee know how is stumbling on its buried nuggets Baker examines a wide range of the achievements that have made and still make America great again and again The Wall Street Journal All made in America The skyscraper and subway car The telephone and telegraph The safety elevator and safety pin Plus the microprocessor amusement park MRI supermarket Pennsylvania rifle and Tennessee Valley Authority Not to mention the city of Chicago or jazz or that magnificent Golden Gate Bridge What is it about America that makes it a nation of inventors tinkerers researchers and adventurers obsessive pursuers of the never before created And equally what is it that makes America such a fertile place to explore discover and launch the next big thing In America the Ingenious bestselling author Kevin Baker brings his gift of storytelling and eye for historical detail to the grand and grandly entertaining tale of American innovation Here are the Edisons and Bells and Carnegies and the stories of how they followed their passions and changed our world And also the less celebrated like Jacob Youphes and Loeb Strauss two Jewish immigrants from Germany who transformed the way at least half the world now dresses hint Levi Strauss And Leo Fender who couldn't play a note of music midwifing rock n roll through his solid body electric guitar and amplifier And the many women who weren't legally recognized as inventors but who created things to make their lives easier that we use every day like Josephine Cochran inventor of the dishwasher or Marion O'Brien Donovan who invented a waterproof diaper cover Or a guy with the improbable name of Philo Farnsworth who with his invention of television upended communication as significantly as Gutenberg did At a time when America struggles with different visions of what it wants to be America the Ingenious shows the extraordinary power of what works how immigration leads to innovation what a strong government and strong public education mean to a climate of positive practical change and why taking the long view instead of looking for short term gain pays off many times over not only for investors and inventors but for the rest of us whose lives are made better by the new America and its nation of immigrants have excelled at taking ideas from anywhere and transforming them into the startling often unexpectedly beautiful creations that have shaped our world This is that story
