China John Lagerwey, 2010-12-01 Over the last 40 years our vision of Chinese culture and history has been transformed by the discovery of the role of religion in Chinese state making and in local society The Daoist religion in particular long despised as superstitious has recovered its place as the native higher religion But while the Chinese state tried from the fifth century on to construct an orthodoxy based on Confucianism Daoism and Buddhism local society everywhere carved out for itself its own geomantically defined space and organized itself around local festivals in honor of gods of its own choosing gods who were often invented and then represented by illiterate mediums Looking at China from the point of view of elite or popular culture therefore produces very different results John Lagerwey has done extensive fieldwork on local society and its festivals This book represents a first attempt to use this new research to integrate top down and bottom up views of Chinese society culture and history It should be of interest to a wide range of China specialists students of religion and popular culture as well as participants in the ongoing interdisciplinary dialogue between historians and anthropologists John Lagerwey is professor of Daoist history at the cole Pratique des Hautes tudes and of Chinese studies at the Chinese University of Hong Kong He is author of Taoist Ritual in Chinese Society and History and editor of the 30 volume Traditional Hakka Society Series as well as the recently published four volume set Early Chinese Religion

The Paradox of Being Poul Andersen,2021-03-01 The question of truth has never been more urgent than today when the distortion of facts and the imposition of pseudo realities in the service of the powerful have become the order of the day In The Paradox of Being Poul Andersen addresses the concept of truth in Chinese Daoist philosophy and ritual His approach is unapologetically universalist and the book may be read as a call for a new way of studying Chinese culture one that does not shy away from approaching the other in terms of an engagement with our own philosophical heritage The basic Chinese word for truth is zhen which means both true and real and it bypasses the separation of the two ideas insisted on in much of the Western philosophical tradition Through wide ranging research into Daoist ritual both in history and as it survives in the present day Andersen shows that the concept of true reality that informs this tradition posits being as a paradox anchored in the inexistent Way Dao The preferred way of life suggested by this insight consists in seeking to be an exception to ordinary norms and rules of behavior which nonetheless engages what is common to us all iconography ritual context methods of mural design and the personalisations made by patrons of the four Heavenly Court paintings History and Magical Power in a Chinese Community P. Sangren,1987-09-01 This book is a case study of history and culture in the Taiwanese town of Ta ch i and the group of rural villages that constitute its standard marketing community

However its scope exceeds that of most community studies The author attempts to construct a holistic view of Chinese culture from an analysis of the relationship between history and ritual in a particular locality The author argues that social institutions and collective representations are dialectically connected in the process of social and cultural reproduction He describes this dialectical process through an analysis of the key cultural concept of ling the magical power attributed to ghosts gods and ancestors In analyzing the symbolic logic of ling he asserts that it can be fully understood only as a product of the reproduction of social institutions and as a manifestation of a native historical consciousness Structuralist and Marxist insights are combined to explain how ling is best understood as both a cultural logic of symbolic relations and a material logic of social relations The book is in three parts Part I is a social and economic history that outlines what one might call an objectivist or positivist view of Ta ch i s history describing events as they were regardless of the perceptions of local participants This material is a background to the synchronic sociological analysis of local territorial cults that constitutes

Part II In Part III the author unsettles the objectivist assumptions of Part I by showing how the idiom of ling underlies Taiwanese constructions of history and identity and how the cultural construction of history dialectically reproduces society and creates history The book is illustrated with 8 pages of photographs 17 line drawings and 9 maps Imagining Heaven light on human creativity in its portrayal of the afterlife Beginning with prehistoric burial objects that help with one s heavenly needs it travels through history to probe ancient texts examines enigmatic carvings dissects the meaning of paintings and discusses contemporary perspectives in film and media The author demonstrates that humans around the world have always had the capacity to confront the final frontier in spirited hopeful and beautiful ways Early Chinese

Religion, Part One: Shang through Han (1250 BC-220 AD) (2 vols.) John Lagerwey,Marc Kalinowski,2008-10-31

Together and for the first time in any language the 24 essays gathered in these volumes provide a composite picture of the history of religion in ancient China from the emergence of writing ca 1250 BC to the collapse of the first major imperial dynasty in 220 AD. It is a multi-faceted tale of changing gods and rituals that includes the emergence of a form of secular humanism that doubts the existence of the gods and the efficacy of ritual and of an imperial orthodoxy that founds its legitimacy on a distinction between licit and illicit sacrifices. Written by specialists in a variety of disciplines, the essays cover such subjects as divination and cosmology, exorcism and medicine, ethics and self-cultivation, mythology, taboos, sacrifice, shamanism, burial practices, iconography, and political philosophy. Produced under the aegis of the Centre de recherche sur les civilisations chinoise japonaise et tibétaine UMR 8155 and the cole Pratique des Hautes études Paris.

Health Care in Eleventh-Century China Nathan Sivin, 2015-09-04. By examining all the prevalent varieties of therapy from self-care to religious ritual, this book explores health care practices in China before modern times. In ancient China, most people were unable to afford a doctor, even in the unlikely case that one lived near their village and was willing to treat peasants. What did they do when their children got sick? The answer is to be found in this book, which goes far beyond the history of medicine. The author uses methods of medical anthropology to explain the curative roles of popular religion, Daoism, Buddhism, and the therapeutic rites performed by imperial officials. Readers will discover the steady interaction of religious healing and classical medicine in this culture. This highly readable book builds on over forty years of study and analysis of early liturgical and medical writings and a wide variety of other sources. Its focus on the eleventh century throws new light on a period of rapid transition in many aspects of therapy, and it will appeal to scholars and general readers alike.
