

More general occupational change

Driven by technological developments :

- need for more detailed categories;
- the treatment of particular occupational groups is inadequate due to technological change
- emergence of new occupations;
- specific occupations are classified at an inappropriate skill level;
- occupation descriptions need to be updated.

Evans,Indhira Santos,2019-01-31 Despite strong recent economic growth Sub Saharan Africa has levels of economictransformation poverty reduction and skill development far below those of other regions Smart investments in developing skills aligned with the policy goals of productivity growth inclusion and adaptability can help to accelerate the region s economic transformation inthe 21st century Sub Saharan Africa s growing working age population presents a major opportunity toincrease shared prosperity Countries in the region have invested heavily in building skills public expenditure on education increased sevenfold over the past 30 years and more childrenare in school today than ever before Yet systems for building skills in this population havefallen short and these shortcomings significantly impede economic prospects In half of thecountries fewer than two in every three children complete primary school even fewer reachand complete higher levels of education Learning outcomes have been persistently poor leading to substantial gaps in basic cognitive skills literacy and numeracy among children young people and adults The literacy rate of the adult population is below 50 percent in manycountries functional literacy and numeracy rates are even lower Systemwide change is required to achieve significant progress Multiple agencies at the central and local levels are involved in skills development strategies making skills everyone's problem but no one's responsibility Policies and reforms need to build capacity for evidence based policies and create incentives to align the behaviors of all stakeholders with the pursuit of national skills development goals The Skills Balancing Act in Sub Saharan Africa Investing in Skills for Productivity Inclusivity and Adaptability lays out evidence to inform the policy choices that countries will make in skill investments Each chapter addresses a set of specific questions drawing on original analysis and synthesis of existing studies to explore key areas How the skills appropriate to each stage of the life cycle are acquired and what market and institutional failures affect skills formation What systems are needed for individuals to access these skills including family investments private sector institutions schools and other public programs How those systems can be strengthened How the most vulnerable individuals those who fall outside the standard systems and have missed critical building blocks in skills acquisition can be supported Countries will face trade offs often stark ones that will have distributional impacts and a bearing on their development path Committed leaders reform coalitions and well coordinated policies are essential for taking on the skills balancing act in Sub Saharan Africa

International Comparisons of Vocational Education and Training for Intermediate Skills

Paul Ryan, 2019-07-23 Paul Ryan has brought together the writings of the most prominent British research into vocational preparation in Britain in comparison to the other advanced economies primarily within the EEC The book originally published in 1991 documents various aspects of inadequacy in British practice at the time concentrating upon intermediate skills which are of crucial importance for economic performance The introduction outlines the strengths and weaknesses of comparative research Part 1 discusses the use which has been made of it by policy makers in Britain and various aspects of comparative methods in practical comparisons including an Anglo Scottish one Part 2 concerns vocational preparation in connection with productivity and product markets noting its importance for economic performance and its dependence upon companies product choices Part 3 contains studies of the organization of skills and work and the finance of training within the EEC as a whole Part 4 comprises studies of training in relation to labour market structures each of which indicates similar alternatives for training policy in Britain alternatives whose relevance and political prospects can only be enhanced by the demise of Thatcher government deregulatory policies
