Brizuela, Brian E. Gravel, 2013 Just like representations in everyday life this book shows that representations are ubiquitous to science technology engineering and mathematics the STEM disciplines Show Me What You Know showcases research on representations across a range of STEM disciplines and ages from children as young as 2 years of age to professional mathematicians The text highlights the importance of paying close attention to learners' interpretations and productions of different representations as a source of evidence for what learners understand and another way for learners to show us what they know The text is organized around four themes appropriation of representations making meaning highlighting and representations as scaffold and supports Book Features Focus on representations in specific STEM disciplines An examination of how students across different ages engage with produce and use representations Section reflections that serve to broaden our thinking about representations Graphs charts and examples of students' drawings Contributors include David W. Carraher Tina Grotzer David Hammer Richard Lehrer Eduardo Mart Ricardo Nemirovsky Tracy Noble Juan Ignacio Pozo Leona Schauble Analía D. Schliemann Judah L. Schwartz and Beth Warren Barbara M. Brizuela is an associate professor in the Department of Education at Tufts University She is the author of Mathematical Development in Young Children Exploring Notations Brian E. Gravel is a lecturer and director of Elementary Education at Tufts University We are provided not only with valuable source material for future theoretical development but with profound encouragement for teachers and researchers to pay close attention to representations as they are generated and interpreted by students From the Foreword by Gerald A. Goldin Transactions Gaelic Society of Inverness, 1875 Sounds and the City Brett Lashua, Stephen Wagg, Karl Spracklen, M. Selim Yavuz, 2018-10-24 This book draws from a rich history of scholarship about the relations between music and cities and the global flows between music and urban experience The contributions in this collection comment on the global city as a nexus of moving people changing places and shifting social relations asking what popular music can tell us about cities and vice versa Since the publication of the first Sounds and the City volume various movements changes and shifts have amplified debates about globalization From the waves of people migrating to Europe from the Syrian civil war and other conflict zones to the 2016 Brexit vote to leave the European Union and American presidential election of Donald Trump These and other events appear to have exposed an anti-globalist retreat toward isolationism and a backlash against multiculturalism that has been termed post-globalization Amidst this what of popular music Does music offer renewed spaces and avenues for public protest for collective action and resistance What can the diverse histories hybridities and legacies of popular music tell us about the ever-changing relations of people and cities
