Silwood Circle, The: A History Of Ecology And The Making Of Scientific Careers In Late Twentieth-century Britain Hannah Gay,2013-04-12 This is an original and wide ranging account of the careers of a close knit group of highly influential ecologists working in Britain from the late 1960s onwards The book can also be read as a history of some recent developments in ecology One of the group Robert May is a past president of the Royal Society and the author of what many see as the most important treatise in theoretical ecology of the later twentieth century That the group flourished was due not only to May s intellectual leadership but also to the guiding hand of T R E Southwood Southwood ended his career as Linacre Professor of Zoology at the University of Oxford where he also served a term as Vice Chancellor Earlier as a professor and director of the Silwood Park campus of Imperial College London he brought the group together Since it began to coalesce at Silwood it has been named here the Silwood Circle Southwood promoted the interests of its members with the larger aim of raising the profile of ecological and environmental science in Britain Given public anxiety over the environment and the loss of ecosystems his actions were well timed Ecology which had been on the scientific margins in the first half of the twentieth century came to be viewed as a science central to modern existence The book illustrates its importance to many areas Members of the Silwood Circle have acted as government advisors in the areas of conservation and biodiversity resource management pest control food policy genetically modified crops sustainable agriculture international development defence against biological weapons and epidemiology and infectious disease control In recounting the science they carried out and how they made their careers the book reflects also on the role of the group and the nature of scientific success

Making Sense of Life Evelyn Fox KELLER,Evelyn Fox Keller,2009-06-30 What do biologists want How will we know when we have made sense of life Explanations in the biological sciences are provisional and partial judged by criteria as heterogenous as their subject matter This text accounts for this diversity

Poetics of Liveliness Ada Smailbegović,2021-10-29 Can poetry act as an aesthetic amplification device akin to a microscope through which we can sense minute or nearly imperceptible phenomena such as the folding of molecules into their three dimensional shapes the transformations that make up the life cycle of a silkworm or the vaporous movements that constitute the ever shifting edges of clouds We tend to think of these subjects as reserved for science but as Ada Smailbegovi argues twentieth and twenty first century writers have intermingled scientific methodologies with poetic form to reveal unfolding processes of change Their works can be envisioned as laboratories within which the methodologies of experimentation natural historical description and taxonomic classification allow poetic language to register the rhythms and durations of material transformation Poetics of Liveliness moves across scales to explore the realms of molecules fibers tissues and clouds It investigates works such as Christian B k s insertion of a poetic text into the DNA code of living bacteria in order to generate a new poem in the shape of a protein molecule Jen Bervin s considerations of silk fibers and their use in biomedicine Gertrude Stein s examination of brain tissues in medical school and its subsequent influence on her literary taxonomies of character and Lisa Robertson s studies of nineteenth century meteorology and the soft architecture of clouds In their attempt to understand physical processes unfolding within lively material worlds Smailbegovi contends these poets have developed a distinctive materialist poetics Structured as a poetic cosmology akin to Lucretius s On the Nature of Things which begins at the atomic level and expands out to the vastness of the universe Poetics of Liveliness provides an innovative and surprising vision of the relationship between science and poetry
