The Kremlin Strikes Back Steven Rosefielde, 2016-12-15 America and Europe responded to Russia's annexation of Crimea on March 18 2014 by discarding their policy of East West partnership and reverting intermittently to a policy of cold war The West believes that this on again off again second Cold War will end with Russia's capitulation because it is not a sufficiently great power while the Kremlin's view is just the opposite Vladimir Putin believes that if Moscow has strategic patience Russia can recover some of the geostrategic losses that it incurred when the Soviet Union collapsed The Kremlin Strikes Back scrutinizes the economic prospects of both sides including factors like military industrial prowess warfighting capabilities and national resolve addressing particularly hot button issues such as increasing military spending decreasing domestic spending and other policies Stephen Rosefielde aims to objectively gauge future prospects and the wisdom of employing various strategies to address Russian developments

Cosmologies of Suffering Agita Lüse, 2009-01-14 The edited volume elaborates on a range of themes that emerged during a workshop of the 8th biennial of the European Association of

Social Anthropologists in Vienna in 2004 Among these themes are the paradoxical permanence of transition in post communist countries the accompanying persistence of social suffering and the structural conditions that give rise to it A final theme focuses on the resources that people mobilize to cope with suffering and trauma Ways of coping manifest a stance towards agency shared by sufferers from diverse post communist regions such as ethnically divided Croatia politically and economically unstable Zimbabwe relatively more peaceful countries such as Hungary Poland and Slovenia and finally two religiously unique areas in Siberia Russia Ethnographic accounts from these diverse settings testify that agency has often involved relinquishing reliance on one's self and turning towards a power higher than the self whether this is conceptualized through the lens of transcendence religion or cosmology

Russian Women and the End of Soviet Socialism Judith McKinney, 2019-08-17 Initially expected to bring efficiency to the Russian economy and prosperity to Russian society the shock therapy of price liberalization privatization and macroeconomic stabilization introduced under Boris Yeltsin was quickly condemned as having worsened the lives of most Russians Based on conversations with more than two dozen women in a provincial Russian capital this book takes a retrospective look at these economic policies and explores how they transformed the trajectory of the lives of these women both positively and negatively in the family and in the workplace McKinney considers the everyday experiences of the women as they provided for their families established businesses travelled abroad and adjusted to the new economic political and social environment of the Late Soviet and Post Soviet era Through their divergent experiences Russian Women and the End of Soviet Socialism casts light on how these women view issues of gender ethnicity domestic and international politics and the end of the Soviet experiment Students and scholars across a range of disciplines including gender studies sociology economics and history will find this book of interest
