Brown, Nancy S Landale, Wendy D. Manning, Susan

M. McHale, 2011-12-10 Early Adulthood in a Family Context based on the 18th annual National Symposium on Family Issues emphasizes the importance of both the family of origin and new and highly variable types of family formation experiences that occur in early adulthood. This volume showcases new theoretical, methodological, and measurement insights in hopes of advancing understanding of the influence of the family of origin on young adults' lives. Both family resources and constraints with respect to economic, social, and human capital are considered.

The Transition to Adulthood and Family Relations
 Eugenia Scabini, Elena Marta, Margherita Lanz, 2007-03-12 This book explores the development of a new path of transition between adolescence and adulthood in recent generations. Whereas traditionally the transition into adulthood was marked by a clear and irreversible change in condition, we are now seeing a continuance in the role and influence of the family on the young adult. What consequences does this have for our society? Is the persistence of emotional bonds, which previously loosened during adolescence, inhibiting young people from developing into full adulthood? The authors present a clear and in-depth analysis of the theoretical framework surrounding the transition into adulthood, both from a generational point of view and a relationship-centred perspective. The findings of international research are presented and compared across generations, gender, and geographical location within Europe. The different research methods of family-related research and family research are also distinguished and analysed. This volume offers an original and multi-faceted review of this topic. The family is considered as an organization, and the interdependencies and interconnections between its members, the generations, and genders are investigated. It offers a unique contribution to the current literature and will appeal to an international audience of researchers, policy makers, and educators both in academic and professional spheres.

The Accordion Family Katherine S. Newman, 2013-01-29 Why are adults in their twenties and thirties stuck in their parents' homes in the world's wealthiest countries? There's no question that globalization has drastically changed the cultural landscape across the world. The cost of living is rising, and high unemployment rates have created an untenable economic climate that has severely compromised the path to adulthood for young people in their twenties and thirties. And there's no end in sight. Families are hunkering down, expanding the reach of their households to envelop economically vulnerable young adults. Acclaimed sociologist Katherine Newman explores the trend toward a rising number of accordion families composed of adult children who will be living off their parents' retirement savings with little means of their own when the older generation is gone. While the trend crosses the developed world, the cultural and political responses to accordion families differ dramatically. In Japan, there is a sense of horror and fear associated with parasite singles; whereas in Italy, the cult of mammismo or mamma's boys is common and widely accepted, though the government is rallying against it. Meanwhile in Spain, frustrated parents and millennials angrily blame politicians and big business for the growing number of youth forced to live at home. Newman's investigation, conducted in six countries, transports the reader into the homes of accordion families and uncovers fascinating links between globalization and the failure to launch trend. Drawing from over three hundred interviews, Newman concludes that nations with weak welfare states have the highest frequency of accordion families while the trend is virtually unknown in the Nordic countries The United States is caught in between But globalization is reshaping the landscape of adulthood everywhere and the consequences are far reaching in our private lives In this gripping and urgent book Newman urges Americans not to simply dismiss the boomerang generation but rather to strategize how we can help the younger generation make its own place in the world

Leaving Home Julia A. Graber,1996 This volume of New Directions of Child Development brings together longitudinal investigations of the transition to adulthood using a multi cultural approach Our specific focus is on the nature of parent child relations prior to and during the transition from home and into adulthood As a group the chapters identify factors associated with the timing of the transition to adulthood as well as the adjustment outcomes as defined by mental health achievement behaviors deviant behaviors and social relations associated with the timing and type of young adult transition In particular the longitudinal design of most of the studies allows the investigators to connect prior childhood and adolescent experiences with young adult outcomes

Not Quite Adults Richard A. Settersten,Barbara E. Ray,2010 Challenges stereotypes about the characters of semi dependent young adults arguing that a gradual shift toward independence can enable higher paying jobs and more responsible marital attitudes Transitions Through Adult Life Charles M. Sell,1991
