Royal Justice and the Making of the Tudor Commonwealth, 1485-1547 Laura Flannigan,2023-11-16 The dawn of the Tudor regime is one of most recognisable periods of English history Yet the focus on its monarch's private lives and ministers constitutional reforms creates the impression that this age's major developments were isolated to halls of power far removed from the wider populace This book presents a more holistic vision of politics and society in late medieval and early modern England Delving into the rich but little studied archive of the royal Court of Requests it reconstructs collaborations between sovereigns and subjects on the formulation of an important governmental ideal justice Examining the institutional and social dimensions of this point of contact this study places ordinary people their knowledge and demands at the heart of a judicial revolution unfolding within the governments of Henry VII and Henry VIII Yet it also demonstrates that directing extraordinary royal justice into ordinary procedures created as many problems as it solved

The Parliament of England, 1559-1581 Geoffrey Rudolph Elton,G. R. Elton,1989-08-25

This is a comprehensive account of the parliament of early modern England at work written by the leading authority on sixteenth century English constitutional and political history Professor Elton explains how parliament dealt with bills and acts discusses the many various matters that came to notice there and investigates its role in political matters In the process he proves that the prevailing doctrine developed by the work of Sir John Neale is wrong that parliament did not acquire a major role in politics that the notion of a consistent body of puritan agitators in opposition to the government is mere fiction and although the Commons processed more bills than the House of Lords the Lords occupied the more important and influential role Parliament's fundamental function in the government of the realm lay rather in the granting of taxes and the making of laws The latter were promoted by a great variety of interests the Crown the Privy Council the bishops and particularly by innumerable private initiators A very large number of bills failed most commonly for lack of time but also because agreement between the three partners Queen Lords and Commons could not be reached Journal of the Statistical Society of London, 1879 Reeves' History of the English Law: From the reign of Edward IV to the reign of Elizabeth John Reeves, William Francis Finlason, 1869 The history of England ... to ... 1688 David Hume, 1882 A humble proposal for parochial reformation, by restoring rural deans and chapters, according to the ancient way of the Church; by J.
