The Market Comes To Education In Sweden An Evaluation Of Swedens Surprising School Reforms:

The Market Comes to Education in Sweden Anders Bjorklund, Melissa A. Clark, Per-Anders Edin, Peter Fredricksson, Alan B. Krueger, 2006-01-09 A large central government providing numerous public services has long been a hallmark of Swedish society which is also well known for its pursuit of equality Yet in the 1990s Sweden moved away from this tradition in education introducing market oriented reforms that decentralized authority over public schools and encouraged competition between private and public schools Many wondered if this approach would improve educational quality or if it might expand inequality that Sweden has fought so hard to hold down In The Market Comes to Education in Sweden economists Anders Bjorklund Melissa Clark Per Anders Edin Peter Fredriksson and Alan Krueger measure the impact of Sweden s bold experiment in governing and help answer the questions that societies across the globe have been debating as they try to improve their children s education The Market Comes to Education in Sweden injects some much needed objectivity into the heavily politicized debate about the effectiveness of educational reform While advocates for reform herald the effectiveness of competition in improving outcomes others suggest that the reforms will grossly increase educational inequality for young people The authors find that increased competition did help improve students math and language skills but only slightly and with no effect on the performance of foreign born students and those with low educated parents They also find some signs of increasing school segregation and wider inequality in student performance but nothing near the doomsday scenarios many feared In fact the authors note that the relationship between family background and school performance has hardly budged since before the reforms were enacted The authors conclude by providing valuable recommendations for school reform such as strengthening school evaluation criteria which are essential for parents students and governments to make competent decisions regarding education Whether or not the market oriented reforms to Sweden s educational system succeed will have far reaching implications for other countries considering the same course of action The Market Comes to Education in Sweden offers firm empirical answers to the questions raised by school reform and brings crucial facts to the debate over the future of schooling in countries across the world well educated society is a prerequisite for the expansion of the country's economic and the further development of the Swedish welfare state. There is also a big awareness of the importance of research and development. Due to this the cost for the education system in Sweden are very high among the highest in the world. In the following pages I want to outline the Swedish educational system. I will start with a sketch of the reforms and according to the lights of this essay I will begin with the 20th century. The goal is to shed light on the needs of the society and on political reasons of the reforms. Furthermore I will represent an overview of the today's system and discuss the differences between the old and the new strategies as well as advantages and disadvantages.

The History of Sweden's Education short Review

In the 19th century Sweden rapidly transformed from an agricultural traditional society into an industrialised society. During this industrialisation and also democratisation the well known Swedish model developed. 1920s By this is the specific model of a social welfare system is meant. It was characterized by centralism, universalism and cooperation between the capital and labour consensus. At that time the focus was on developing a social welfare system, this includes also focus on the education system. In this inclusive and centralised welfare state science was a tool for modernising society in large reforms. The peak was reached in the 1970s. During this decade the demands for decentralisation as well as pluralism increased.

Introduction Sweden is the third largest country in the European Union after France and Spain. It has approximately 9 million inhabitants thereof ca 1 million immigrants. Till the end of August 2006 there had 64 681 Immigrants been given excess to Sweden. So the population is heterogeneous and is concentrated in mainly three areas of the country. In an international comparison the Swedish overall rate of participation in education is one of the highest. The basic principle of education in Sweden is equality. This means equality of opportunities access but also equality of outcomes results. Everybody in Sweden must have access to an equivalent uniform education regardless of sex irrespective of their social or ethnic backgrounds or their place of residence because a well educated society is a prerequisite for the expansion of the country's economic and the further development of the Swedish welfare state.
