Broadcasting in the UK and US in the 1950s Jamie Medhurst, Siân Nicholas, Thomas O'Malley, 2016-05-11 In an age of digital communications where radio satellite television and computing have come together to allow instant access to information and entertainment from around the globe it is sometimes easy to overstate the break with the recent past that these developments imply However from a historical perspective it is important to recognise that the national dimensions of communications including broadcasting have always been framed within different sets of international political economic cultural and technological relationships Television so easily seen as the last technology to succumb to the effects of internationalisation subsequent to the technical and political changes of the late twentieth century was in fact from the outset embedded in international interactions In recent years a focus has been placed on the longstanding sets of transnational relationships in place in the years after World War II when television established itself as the dominant form of mass communication in Europe and America Recent research has adopted a comparative approach to television history which has examined the interactions within Europe and between Europe and America from the 1950s onwards In addition there has been increasing interest in the idea of television in the Anglophone world looking at transatlantic interactions from the early phases of the development of the technology through the growing market for formats in the 1950s and outwards to connections with Australia and Hong Kong in these years The essays in this collection contribute to this area by bringing together in one volume work which focuses on both national developments in UK and US broadcasting in the 1950s to allow for reflection on how those systems were developing and being understood within those societies and raise issues about the ways in which the two systems interacted and can be usefully compared Some contributions deliberately focus on international issues while others embed the international dimension within them and still others offer a critical commentary on developments during the 1950s The book will appeal primarily to students and researchers in media and communication studies television studies radio studies and history but will also be of interest to all who have an interest in developments in communication in the post war period      "A Matter of Fundamental Sounds" Kim Suyin Conner, 1995      The Industrial Revolution in America Kevin Hillstrom, Laurie Collier Hillstrom, 2007-02-22 This three volume set concludes ABC CLIO's groundbreaking series on the Industrial Revolution as it played out in the United States offering volumes on the communications industry and the agriculture and meatpacking industries plus a concluding overview volume on the causes courses and interconnections among the industries that brought such dramatic change to our lives The concluding three volume set in ABC CLIO's landmark Industrial Revolution in America series offers vivid reminders of how this economic renaissance changed virtually every facet of American life Communications takes readers from the telegraph to the telephone and beyond showing how improvements in communication aided by better transportation helped create a truly national marketplace Agriculture and Meatpacking details the shift of agriculture from family farms and local trade to mass production and agribusiness sparking the development of a full range of farm machinery and spawning the rise of a new metropolis practically overnight The concluding Overview Comparison volume looks at the Industrial Revolution as a whole revealing the impact of various industries on each other and gauging the revolution s broader social and political legacy in the United States and around the world     Understanding Mass Communication Melvin Lawrence DeFleur, Everette E.
