The Mainstreamed Library Issues Ideas Innovations:

The Reference Library User William A. Katz, 1990 Provide the best possible service to your library patrons With a healthy respect for those who seek assistance at the reference desk a group of library and information service specialists examine the public whom they serve The Reference Library User focuses on the possible interactions between the reference librarian and the library user The authoritative contributors discuss many problems in the relationship between the public and the library and all offer suggestions that will at least help librarians to better serve the public on a daily basis A major emphasis of The Reference Library User is on the various populations using the library and their particular needs For example one chapter examines the information needs of deinstitutionalized patrons and presents methods of providing service and a rationale for community outreach The state program in Rhode Island is outlined describing efforts to reach community residents through public libraries and the state operated Bookmobile Other chapters provide strategies for providing reference services to older adults the learning disabled the blind and the physically handicapped This informative new volume also deals with general concerns facing librarians today including determining the audience for both public and academic libraries educating the user encouraging nonusers to become library users and calming irate patrons Reference librarians will be particularly interested in the problems and solutions discussed in this new volume as will library managers and administrators who will always benefit from a fresh perspective on public service for the library user Great Library Promotion Ideas Ann Heidbreder Eastman, Roger H. Parent, 1984

New Interventions for Children and Youth Robert N. Rapoport, 1987-12-25 Abstract This book examines ten projects that represent new approaches to the mental health problems of children and youth Each of the projects is described and analyzed as a case study revealing how the new intervention took form what contribution was expected from a collaborative relationship with a behavioral scientist and what the actual experiences were in attempting to apply and disseminate knowledge arising from such a relationship The collaborative interactive relationship between the author and the project directors was termed action research

The Different Faces of Motherhood Beverly Birns, Dale Hay, 2013-06-29 The Different Faces of Motherhood began during a conversation between the two editors developmental psychologists who have spent our professional careers working with infants and very young children We are well aware of the importance of infants to their mothers and of mothers to their infants However we were particularly aware of the fact that whereas our knowledge about infants increases exponentially each decade our assumptions about mothers change relatively little We were concerned about the theories that underlie the advice given to mothers and also about the assumption that mothers appear to be generic More and more we have learned about individual differences in babies but not more and more about individual differences in mothers Our second concern has been to expand our knowledge about mothers Our assumptions were few and our questions were many We believed that the experience of women would vary greatly both in outlook and in behavior depending on each woman's age marital status financial status ethnicity health education and work experience as well as a woman's own experience in her family origin and her relationship to her husband If we are to understand child development and believe that the early years are important in a child's life then it seems critical to examine our beliefs about mothers If we are to understand human development then being a mother is surely an important area of inquiry
