

The book cover features a dark, textured background with a large, detailed eye in the center. The eye has a light blue iris and a dark pupil, looking directly at the viewer. The eye is surrounded by dark, jagged, and somewhat translucent shapes that resemble torn paper or dark smoke. A bright, golden-yellow light source is visible on the left side, casting a glow and creating a sense of depth. The title 'AYASA' is written in a large, elegant, white serif font across the middle of the cover. Below it, the subtitle 'SHADOWS OF SILENCE' is written in a smaller, simpler white font, flanked by horizontal lines.

The Skin Edmar Camara,2025-05-21 Between the last breath and final oblivion there exists a realm of skins that remember Edii Camara weaves a disturbing allegory about our relationship with the scars of the soul When an entity offers the dangerous gift of erasure the protagonist faces the ultimate dilemma to become whole through pain or to reinvent herself in the lie of forgetting In this work that blends the lyricism of Clarice Lispector with the cosmic imagination of Philip K Dick we discover that healing is not in what we erase but in what we dare to carry The Skin is not just a book but an instrument of existential autopsy it invites the reader to dissect their own literal and metaphorical scars through a lens that equates the biomedical and the metaphysical The book establishes a singular ontology where memory is the constitutive matter of the soul and the skin functions as a liminal interface between existences in the dark world that operates under an emotional physics where light equals consciousness where shadows equal the absence of concepts and iridescence is tested authenticity
