The Mapping Of The American Southwest:

The Mapping of the American Southwest Dennis Reinhartz, Charles C. Colley, 1987 Mapping and Empire Dennis Reinhartz, Gerald D. Saxon, 2010-01-01 From the sixteenth through the mid nineteenth centuries Spain then Mexico and finally the United States took ownership of the land from the Gulf Coast of Texas and Mexico to the Pacific Coast of Alta and Baja California today s American Southwest Each country faced the challenge of holding on to territory that was poorly known and sparsely settled and each responded by sending out military mapping expeditions to set boundaries and chart topographical features All three countries recognized that turning terra incognita into clearly delineated political units was a key step in empire building as vital to their national interest as the activities of the missionaries civilian officials settlers and adventurers who followed in the footsteps of the soldier engineers With essays by eight leading historians this book offers the most current and comprehensive overview of the processes by which Spanish Mexican and U S soldier engineers mapped the southwestern frontier as well as the local and even geopolitical consequences of their mapping Three essays focus on Spanish efforts to map the Gulf and Pacific Coasts to chart the inland Southwest and to define and defend its boundaries against English French Russian and American incursions Subsequent essays investigate the role that mapping played both in Mexico s attempts to maintain control of its northern territory and in the United States push to expand its political boundary to the Pacific Ocean The concluding essay draws connections between mapping in the Southwest and the geopolitical history of the Americas and Europe Mapping Latin America Jordana Dym, Karl Offen, 2011-09-28 57 studies of individual maps and the cultural environment that they spring from and exemplify including one pre Columbian map The New Nature of Maps J. B. Harley, 2002-10-03 In these essays the author draws on ideas in art history literature philosophy and the study of visual culture to subvert the traditional positivist model of cartography and replace it with one grounded in an iconological and semiotic theory of the nature of maps Vegetation Dynamics on the Mountains and Plateaus of the American Southwest John Vankat, 2013-05-27 The book provides information essential for anyone interested in the ecology of the American Southwest including land managers environmental planners conservationists ecologists and students It is unique in its coverage of the hows and whys of dynamics changes in the major types of vegetation occurring on southwestern mountains and plateaus It explains the drivers and processes of change describes historical changes and provides conceptual models that diagrammatically illustrate past present and potential future changes All major types of vegetation are covered spruce fir mixed conifer and ponderosa pine forests pinyon juniper vegetation subalpine montane grassland and Gambel oak and interior chaparral shrublands The focus is on vegetation that is relatively undisturbed i e in natural and near natural condition and how it responds to natural disturbances such as fire and drought as well as to anthropogenic disturbances such as fire exclusion and invasive species Mapping and Charting in Early Modern England and France Christine Petto, 2015-03-26 Mapping and Charting for the Lion and the Lily Map and Atlas Production in Early Modern England and France is a comparative study of the production and role of maps charts and atlases in early modern England and France with a particular focus on Paris the cartographic center of production from the late seventeenth century to the late eighteenth century and London which began to emerge in the late eighteenth century to eclipse the once favored Bourbon center The themes that carry through the work address the role of government in map and chart making In France in particular it is the importance of the centralized government and its support for geographic works and their makers through a broad and deep institutional infrastructure Prior to the late eighteenth century in England there was no central controlling agency or institution for map chart or atlas production and any official power was imposed through the market rather than through the establishment of institutions There was no centralized support for the cartographic enterprise and any effort by the crown was often challenged by the power of Parliament which saw little value in fostering or supporting scholar geographers or a national survey This book begins with an investigation of the imagery of power on map and atlas frontispieces from the late sixteenth century to the seventeenth century In the succeeding chapters the focus moves from county and regional mapping efforts in England and France to the paper wars over encroachment in their respective colonial interests The final study looks at charting efforts and highlights the role of government support and the commercial trade in the development of maritime charts not only for the home waters of the English Channel but the distant and dangerous seas of the East Indies
