

SOCIAL EXCHANGE THEORY

Social exchange theory postulates that people form a relationship through cost-benefit analysis.

COMPONENTS

According to social exchange theory, every relationship has the following components:

1. Costs – the elements of a relationship which have a negative value to a person.
2. Rewards – the elements of a relationship which have a positive value to a person.

EXAMPLES

1. Highest Reward

Costs being equal, an individual will choose the alternative from which they expect to receive the highest reward.

2. Lowest Cost

Rewards being equal, an individual will choose the alternative from which they expect the lowest cost.

Social Exchange Theory Its Structure And Influence In Social Psychology:

Social Exchange Theory John K. Chadwick-Jones,1976 Social Exchange in Developing Relationships Robert L. Burgess,Ted L. Huston,2013-09-11 Social Exchange in Developing Relationships is a collection of papers that deals with the systematic study of the development of relationships The papers discuss several theoretical perspectives such as evolutionary theory personality theory cognitive developmental theory equity theory role theory and attribution theory One paper discusses romantic relationships the evolution of first acquaintance to close or intimate commitment Another paper presents the hypothesis that the factors causing a relationship to begin will also probably steer intermediate cognitive processes eventually influencing the nature of the relationship Commitment requires specific concepts such as input levels contributed to the relationship duration of these inputs and their consistency of occurrence The equity theory suggests that equity principles determine the selection of one's mate and how they the partners will get along in the future One paper analyzes the dynamic theories of social relationships and the resulting research strategies that the conceptualization of a parameter of a social relationship can affect the choice of data collection techniques and other matters Sociologists psychologists historians students and academicians doing sociological research can benefit greatly from this collection The Social Psychology of Groups John W. Thibaut,2017-09-29 This landmark theory of interpersonal relations and group functioning argues that the starting point for understanding social behavior is the analysis of dyadic interdependence Such an analysis portrays the ways in which the separate and joint actions of two persons affect the quality of their lives and the survival of their relationship The authors focus on patterns of interdependence and on the assumption that these patterns play an important causal role in the processes roles and norms of relationships This powerful theory has many applications in all the social sciences including the study of social and moral norms close pair relationships conflicts of interest and cognitive disputes social orientations the social evolution of economic prosperity and leadership in groups and personal relationships

Social Exchange Kenneth Gergen, 2012-12-06 INTRODUCTION In developing scientific theory there is perhaps nothing more propitious than a compelling metaphor If the metaphor is rich in imagery complexly differentiated emotionally evocative and vitally wedded to the cultural lore the theory to which it gives rise may enjoy a long and vigorous life If the metaphor is sufficiently powerful the theory may even be sustained in independence of systematic empirical support Role theory is likely to remain prosperous so long as there is a thriving theater decision theory experienced a dramatic rejuvenation with the development of the electronic computer and in spite of its archaic construction Jungian theory will prevail so long as ancient myths and symbols continue to haunt us d Smith 1978 From this standpoint the development of social exchange theory is hardly surprising Experience with the marketplace is extensive in society its images are both complex and richly evocative its challenges are often exciting and its lessons sometimes painful It is thus both intellectually and emotionally invigorating to consider the social arena in all its diversity as an extended market in which each individual seeks to maximize profits The economic metaphor is hardly new to the social sciences The recent intellectual roots of contemporary exchange theory can be traced to the works of Claude Levi Strauss Marcel Mauss Karl Marx and B

Ickes,2012-12-06 Several years ago two of my colleagues and I had the opportunity to interview Fritz Heider perhaps the most influential theorist in the field of social psychology Harvey Ickes Kidd 1976 During our interview Heider affirmed a belief that had guided his career since the 1920s the belief that the study of human relationships is the most important task in which social scientists can engage Although many social scientists would profess to share this belief it is nonetheless true that the study of human relationships has been one of the most neglected tasks in the history of the social sciences including psychology What Heider found in the 1920s that most psychologists acknowledged the importance of studying human relationships but at the same time tended to focus their own research on more tractable topics such as memory and cognition is still very much evident in the 1980s Even within the more specific domain of social psychology a majority of researchers still choose to address those hybrid topics social cognition social categorization and stereotyping person memory etc that relate most directly to traditional areas of psychological research Still other researchers while choosing to study such important interpersonal phenomena as altruism aggression conflict and interpersonal attraction tend to focus so exclusively on these isolated and abstracted phenomena that they fail to provide a more inclusive view of the relationships in which these phenomena occur Relating in Psychotherapy John Birtchnell,2013-05-13 In John Birtchnell's last book How Humans Relate he proposed a new theory as the basis for a science of relating Relating in Psychotherapy explains how the relevance of this theory relates to the practice of psychotherapy The theory cuts across all schools of therapy and is a way of describing each school in terms of relating in both the client and the therapist The theory is constructed around two major axes a horizontal one concerning the degree to which we need to become involved with or separated from others and a vertical one concerning the degree to which we choose to exercise power over others or permit others to exercise their power over us With numerous clinical examples John Birtchnell explains how we need to be competent in all four relating positions close distant upper and lower and argues that people who seek therapy usually lack competence in one or more of them but through the course of therapy their relating capabilities can be improved Relating in composed of papers derived from two sources An International Conference on Social Psychology and Language was held in Bristol in July 1979 Considerations of space rather than merit prevented some of the papers given in supplementary sessions on language development from being published in the proceedings These papers are published in this volume Also included are recent and hitherto unpublished papers from European researchers working in the field of language and cognitive development The contents of this volume range from the early non verbal communication to the emergence of the child's understanding about referential communication and to between and within socio economic status differences in maternal and child behavior The kinds of verbal and non verbal experience that promote intellectual development are considered within the frames of both observed changes within children and cross sectional studies of individual differences in mother child interaction The idea that the child's performance is context sensitive is one of the general ideas that has been taken increasingly into account Two chapters pay close attention to this issue both treat it as a challenge to experimental and theoretical ingenuity recognizing that the child is an active participant in situations where he is observed and that the challenge is to divine the principles regulating the child's behavior The Divine-Human Relationship in Romans 1-8 in the Light of Interdependence Theory Yoonjong Kim, 2020-11-12 Yoonjong Kim analyses the divine human relationship in Paul's theology focusing on Paul's portrayal of the relationship in Romans 1-8 Kim stresses that previous studies of this relationship have not paid sufficient attention to the fact that it is not static but rather exhibits progression and development towards a goal To address the significance of the human agent's role in the relationship Kim employs a social psychological theory interdependence theory offering a consistent analytic framework for diagnosing the interactions in a dyadic relationship in terms of the dependency created by each partner's expectations of outcomes Kim explores several key stages of the divine human relationship and the direction in which the relationship develops throughout Romans 1-8 in order to highlight the significance of the human partners in the course of the development He focuses in particular on betrayal 1:18-3:20 restoration 3:21-26 5:1-11 the oppressive relationship with Sin 5:12-8:11 and the investment for the future 8:12-39 and concludes that although the foundation of the relationship rests on God's initiative the divine outworking guides the relationship so that it facilitates mutual participation of the human partners in the restoration and development of the relationship toward the ultimate goal
