features of their lives they must attend school they have no control over the curriculum they can't choose who their classmates are What teenagers do have is the power to create status systems and symbols that not only exasperate adults but also impede learning and maturing Ironically parents educators and businesses are inadvertently major contributors to these outcomes Human Capital Or Cultural Capital? George Farkas, This study seeks to reorient our understanding of the early educational determinants of social stratification outcomes It focuses on the process and consequences of unequal cognitive skill attainment for ethnic and poverty groups within our nation's cities It draws theoretically on the notion that experiences at home and school create a feedback loop by which the cultural capital of the students their toolkit of skills habits and styles with which they construct strategies of action evolves over time and largely determines differential success in mastering the teacher assigned coursework
