Social Theory In Archaeology Foundations Of Archaeological Inquiry:

Social Theory in Archaeology Michael B. Schiffer, 2000 A handbook to an array of theoretical approaches that contribute something provocative or significant to the enterprise of constructing social theory in archaeology setting the agenda for future research

Social Theory in Archaeology Michael B. Schiffer, 2000 Since the debut of the New Archaeology in the 1960s approaches to the science of interpreting the material past have proliferated Seeking to find common ground in an increasingly fractious and polarized discipline a group of archaeological theorists representing various schools of thought gathered in a roundtable during the fall of 1997 As organizer Michael Schiffer sought to build bridges that might begin to span the conceptual chasms that have formed in archaeology during the past few decades Many participants in the roundtable accepted the challenge of building bridges but some rejected the premise that bridge building is desirable or feasible Even so every chapter in the resulting volume contributes something provocative or significant to the enterprise of constructing social theory in archaeology and setting the agenda for future social theoretic research With contributions from every major school of thought whether informed by evolutionary theory feminism chaos theory behavioralism or post processualism this volume serves as both handbook to an array of theoretical approaches and as a useful look at each school's response to criticism

Cities and the Shaping of Memory in the Ancient Near East

Ömür Harmanşah, 2013-03-18 This book investigates the founding and building of cities in the ancient Near East. The creation of new cities was imagined as an ideological project or a divine intervention in the political narratives and mythologies of Near Eastern cultures, often masking the complex processes behind the social production of urban space. During the Early Iron Age c. 1200–850 BCE, Assyrian and Syro-Hittite rulers developed a highly performative official discourse that revolved around constructing cities, cultivating landscapes, building watercourses, erecting monuments, and initiating public festivals. This volume combs through archaeological, epigraphic, visual, architectural, and environmental evidence to tell the story of a region from the perspective of its spatial practices, landscape history, and architectural technologies. It argues that the cultural processes of the making of urban spaces shape collective memory and identity as well as sites of political performance and state spectacle.

Persistent Traditions Luc W.S.W. Amkreutz, 2013-12-19 The adoption of agriculture is one of the major developments in human history. Archaeological studies have demonstrated that the trajectories of Neolithisation in Northwest Europe were diverse. This book presents a study into the archaeology of the communities involved in the process of Neolithisation in the Lower Rhine Area, 5500–2500 cal BC. It elucidates the role played by the indigenous communities in relation to their environmental context and in view of the changes that becoming Neolithic brought about. This work brings together a comprehensive array of excavated archaeological sites in the Lower Rhine Area. Their analysis shows that the succession of Late Mesolithic Swifterbant culture, Hazendonk group, and Vlaardingense culture societies represents a continuous long-term tradition of inhabitation of the wetlands and wetland margins of this area, forming a culturally continuous record of communities in the transition to agriculture. After demonstrating the diversity of the Mesolithic, the subsequent developments regarding Neolithisation are studied from an indigenous perspective. Foregrounding the relationship between local communities and the dynamic wetland landscape, the study shows that the archaeological evidence of regional inhabitation points to long-term flexible behaviour and pragmatic decisions being made concerning livelihood, food economy, and mobility. This disposition also influenced how the novel elements of Neolithisation were incorporated. Animal husbandry, crop cultivation, and sedentism were an addition to the existing broad-spectrum economy but were incorporated within a set of integrative strategies. For the interpretation of Neolithisation, this study offers a complementary approach to existing research. Instead of arguing for a short transition based on the economic importance of domesticates and cultigens at sites, this study emphasises the persistent traditions of the communities involved. New elements instead of bringing about radical changes are shown to be attuned to existing hunter-gatherer practices. By documenting indications of the mentality of the inhabitants of the wetlands, it is demonstrated that their mindset remained essentially Mesolithic for millennia. This book is accompanied by a separate 422-page volume containing the appendices. These constitute a comprehensive inventory of 159 mostly excavated archaeological sites in the Lower Rhine Area.

Mound Builders and Monument Makers of the Northern Great Lakes, 1200–1600 Meghan C. L. Howey, 2012-11-20 Rising above the northern Michigan landscape prehistoric burial mounds and impressive circular earthen enclosures bear witness to the deep history of the region's ancient indigenous peoples. These mounds and earthworks have long been treated as isolated finds and have never been connected to the social dynamics of the time in which they were constructed, a period called Late Prehistory. In Mound Builders and Monument Makers of the Northern Great Lakes 1200-1600, Meghan C. L. Howey uses archaeology to make this connection. She shows how indigenous communities of the northern Great Lakes used earthen structures as gathering places for ritual and social interaction, which maintained connected egalitarian societies in the process. Examining every available ceramic sherd from every northern earthwork, Howey combines regional archaeological investigations with ethnohistory, analysis of spatial relationships, and collaboration with tribal communities to explore changes in the area's social setting from 1200 to 1600. During this time, cultural shifts such as the adoption of maize horticulture led to the creation of the earthen constructions. Burial mounds were erected, marking claims to resources and defining areas for local ritual gatherings, while massive circular enclosures were constructed as intersocietal ceremonial centers. Together, Howey shows these structures made up part of an interconnected purposefully designed cultural landscape. When societies incorporated the earthworks into their egalitarian social and ritual behaviors, the structures became something more: ceremonial monuments. The first systematic examination of earthen constructions in what is today Michigan, Mound Builders and Monument Makers of the Northern Great Lakes 1200-1600 reveals complicated indigenous histories that played out in the area before European contact. Howey's richly illustrated investigation increases our understanding of the diverse cultures and dynamic histories of the pre-Columbian ancestors of today's Great Lake tribes.

The Oxford Handbook of Archaeological Network Research, Tom Brughmans, Barbara J. Mills, Jessica Munson, Matthew A. Peeples, 2024. Archaeology at the Millennium, Gary M. Feinman, T. Douglas Price, 2007-09-27. In this book, internationally distinguished contributors consider hot topics in turn of the millennium archaeology and chart an ambitious agenda for the future.

The Historical Turn in Southeastern Archaeology, Robbie Ethridge, Eric E. Bowne, 2020-11-03. This volume uses case studies to capture the recent emphasis on history in archaeological reconstructions of America's deep past, representing a profound shift in thinking about precolonial and colonial history and helping to erase the false divide between ancient and contemporary America.

The Rise of Bronze Age Society, Kristian Kristiansen, Thomas B. Larsson, 2005-12-08. This 2005 book presents a significant interpretation of the social transformation in Bronze Age Europe.

Leadership and Polity in Mississippian Society, Brian M. Butler, Paul D. Welch, 2006. The contributors to this volume argue for a much richer view of variation in Mississippian leadership structures, including variation in gender relations, economic structure, political institutions, and religious organization, than the often dichotomized view of simple vs. complex chiefdoms.

Ritual in Viking Age Scandinavia Marianne Hem Eriksen, 2019-02-28 In this book Marianne Hem Eriksen explores the social organization of Viking Age Scandinavia through a study of domestic architecture and in particular the doorway A highly charged architectural element the door is not merely a practical constructional solution Doors control access generate movement and demark boundaries yet also serve as potent ritual objects For this study Eriksen analyzes and interprets the archaeological data of house remains from Viking Age Norway which are here synthesized for the first time Using social approaches to architecture she demonstrates how the domestic space of the Viking household which could include masters and slaves wives and mistresses children and cattle was not neutral Quotidian and ritual interactions with through and orchestrated by doorways prove to be central to the production of a social world in the Viking Age Eriksen's book challenges the male dominated focus of research on the Vikings and expands research questions beyond topics of seaborne warriors trade and craft

Archaeological Theory Robert

Chapman, 2022-11-22 Archaeological Theory The Basics is an accessible introduction to an indispensable part of what archaeologists do. The book guides the reader to an understanding of what theory is, how it works, and the range of theories used in archaeology. The growth of theory and the adoption of theories drawn from both the natural and social sciences have broadened our ability to produce trustworthy knowledge about the past. This book helps readers to see the value of archaeological theory and beyond what is sometimes thought to be just the use of indigestible jargon. Key theories and concepts are introduced to the reader. Among the main questions discussed are the following: What is theory and why do we need it? What major areas of theory are and have been used and debated in archaeology? What do they tell us about themes including human society, evolution, culture, identity, and agency? How might archaeological theory change in the future? This book is written mainly for readers new to archaeology and will help them to understand archaeological theory. It assumes no prior knowledge of archaeological theory and presents it in a selective and clear way with case studies showing how theory is used in practice.

Biography of a Hacienda Elizabeth Terese Newman, 2014-04-17 Winner James Deetz Book Award Society for Historical Archaeology. Biography of a Hacienda is a many voiced reconstruction of events leading up to the Mexican Revolution and the legacy that remains to the present day. Drawing on ethnohistorical, archaeological, and ethnographic data, Elizabeth Terese Newman creates a fascinating model of the interplay between the great events of the Revolution and the lives of everyday people. In 1910 the Mexican Revolution erupted out of a century of tension surrounding land ownership and control over labor. During the previous century the elite ruling classes acquired ever increasingly large tracts of land while peasants saw their subsistence and community independence vanish. Rural working conditions became so oppressive that many resorted to armed rebellion. After the war, new efforts were made to promote agrarian reform, and many of Mexico's rural poor were awarded the land they had farmed for generations. Weaving together fiction, memoir, and data from her fieldwork, Newman reconstructs life at the Hacienda San Miguel Acocotla, a site located near a remote village in the Valley of Atlixco, Puebla, Mexico. Exploring people's daily lives and how they affected the buildup to the Revolution and subsequent agrarian reforms, the author draws on nearly a decade of interdisciplinary study of the Hacienda Acocotla and its descendant community. Newman's archaeological research recovered information about the lives of indigenous people living and working there in the one hundred years leading up to the Mexican Revolution. Newman shows how women were central to starting the revolt and she adds their voices to the master narrative. Biography of a Hacienda concludes with a thoughtful discussion of the contribution of the agrarian revolution to Mexico's history and whether it has succeeded or simply transformed rural Mexico into a new global hacienda system.
