The book begins with a historical overview of libraries and their transformation as information and technology hubs within their communities. It also covers the various specializations within the field, emphasizing the exciting yet complex roles and opportunities for information professionals. With that foundation in place, it presents how libraries serve different kinds of communities, highlighting the unique needs of users across all ages and how libraries fulfill those needs through a variety of services and addresses key issues facing information organizations as they meet user needs in the Digital Age. The book then concludes with career management strategies to guide library and information science professionals in building not only vibrant careers but vibrant information organizations for the future as well.

Challenges in Librarianship Nancy J. Becker, Elizabeth B. Pollicino, Dennis H. Holtschneider, 2003. These contextual cases remind us that we think best when the issues before us evoke both passion and professionalism. Here are vividly detailed everyday tensions of librarianship portrayed among human complexities and imaginable lives. We become stronger not by crafting elegant solutions but by conducting focused contemplation and multifaceted talk. Dr. David Carr, Associate Professor, School of Information and Library Science, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Special Libraries and Information Centers Ellis Mount, 1983. Libraries and Librarianship George Bobinski, 2007-03-15. In George Bobinski's sixty-year career as a library professional (1945-2005), libraries underwent massive changes and epochal advancements. In this important work, Bobinski summarizes the major trends and events that have transformed the library world and the profession of librarianship into what it is today. Libraries and Librarianship begins with a historical review of the core of librarianship, focusing on the information formats available in or through libraries, the organization of library information sources, changes in reference service, trends in library management, and the all-embracing impact of technology on libraries. Bobinski also addresses library types and the growth of library cooperation and resource sharing, the spread of collaboration through library systems, consortia and networks, federal funding, library philanthropy, and the important role of the Council on Library and Information Resources since its establishment in 1956, the growth and activities of professional library associations, the shifting roles of gender and ethnicity, and the changes in library buildings. Furthermore, a list of eminent individuals who had the greatest impact on the field during this period and influenced the dramatic changes that have taken place in library and information science education is included. Concluding with a discussion of the major developments in the field and providing a look into what the future might hold for libraries, this book will be embraced by library students, practitioners, and professors alike.
