Selby, 2017-10-04 On American Taxation was a speech given by Edmund Burke in the British House of Commons on April 19 1774 advocating the full repeal of the Townshend Revenue Act of 1767 Parliament had previously repealed five of the six duties of this revenue tax on the American colonies but the tax on tea remained The speech was given during the debates on the Coercive Acts when Rose Fuller proposed that the Townshend duty on tea be repealed to decrease resistance to the new acts Burke s speech was in support of this motion According to historian Robert Middlekauff The speech is memorable for its wit and its brilliant reconstruction of the government s dismal efforts to bring order into colonial affairs without the advantage of a coherent policy Edmund Burke was a British member of Parliament who by the 1770s had become an important part of the opposition The Stamp Act was passed the same year he was first elected to Parliament and this and ensuing revenue acts had generated significant resistance among American colonists In general terms Burke argued throughout these years that the resistance was a consequence of the inflexibility of British policy towards its colonies His arguments were the ideas of an eminently practical man Burke was more concerned with the actual functioning of government than with theory or history By the spring of 1774 Burke had come to believe that affairs between Britain and the colonies were reaching an important moment He did not believe that a break was imminent but knew the situation was serious When a debate was held in Parliament related to a motion to repeal the Tea Act he took the opportunity to speak He intended to give a general warning about British policy but not necessarily to propose many specific remedies Edmund Burke 12 January 1729 9 July 1797 was an Irish statesman born in Dublin as well as an author orator political theorist and philosopher who after moving to London served as a member of parliament MP for many years in the House of Commons with the Whig Party Burke was a strong proponent of maintaining solid moral virtues in society and of the importance of religion in attaining that virtue and keeping society together These views were expressed in his A Vindication of Natural Society Burke criticized British treatment of the American colonies including through its taxation policies He also supported the American Revolution believing both that it couldn t affect British or European stability and would be an innovative experiment in political development because the Americas were so far away from Europe and thus could have little impact on England Burke is remembered for his support for Catholic emancipation the impeachment of Warren Hastings from the East

India Company and for his staunch opposition to the French Revolution In his Reflections on the Revolution in France Burke claimed that the revolution was destroying the fabric of good society traditional institutions of state society and condemned the persecution of the Catholic Church that resulted from it This led to his becoming the leading figure within the conservative faction of the Whig Party which he dubbed the Old Whigs as opposed to the pro French Revolution New Whigs led by Charles James Fox In the nineteenth century Burke was praised by both conservatives and liberals Subsequently in the twentieth century he became widely regarded as the philosophical founder of modern conservatism

Inspector of the Imports and Exports in the Custom House which he resigned to become Usher of the Exchequer which gave him at first 3900 per annum but this increased over the years Upon coming of age he became Comptroller of the Pipe and Clerk of the Estreats which gave him an income of 300 per annum

Excerpt from Burke's Speeches On American Taxation on Conciliation With America and Letter to the Sheriffs of Bristol Edited With Introduction and Notes That the majority of the House of Commons would arrogate to itself the right of determining whom the constituencies might elect to sit as their representatives There were violent riots in London provoked by the sympathy Of the mob with Wilkes and by general detestation of the arbitrary conduct of the House of Commons Burke's View of the period his explanation of the disorders and the remedies which he proposed are set forth in his pamphlet on The Cause of the Present Discontents published in 1770 About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Burke's Speech on American Taxation (Classic Reprint) James Hugh Moffatt, 2015-07-14 Excerpt from Burke's Speech on American Taxation William Hazlitt said There is no single speech of Mr Burke which can convey a satisfactory idea of his powers of mind to do him justice it would be necessary to quote all his works the only specimen of Burke is all that he wrote If a specimen must be selected it is wise to select his two speeches on American affairs both of which should be read by every student of literature and of history This edition of American Taxation has been prepared to meet the actual demands of the class room Too often the student is content with reading Conciliation with America Experience in class rooms for four years with six hundred students has shown that notwithstanding the excellence of Conciliation with America it gives students a one sided impression of Burke as an orator and a debater which can be corrected by a study of American Taxation His speeches were not always so calm dignified and temperate as Conciliation with America The energy and wit of American Taxation are more typical of him Like most of his speeches it was not prepared in advance but spoken extemporaneously what it loses in coordination of construction it gains in intensity of argument It came white hot from the furnace of his convictions It reveals his skill in detecting the weaknesses of his opponents which long experience in the minority had taught him It illustrates the historical method of debate which Burke applied to every question and which appears to a less noticeable degree in Conciliation with America About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Burke's Speeches on American Taxation, on Conciliation with America and Letter to the Sheriffs of Bristol Edmund Burke,1895 Speech of Edmund Burke, Esq. on American Taxation, April 19, 1774 Edmund Burke,1775 Speeches: On American Taxation Edmund Burke,1895
