Spectacular Washington:

George Washington's Spectacular Spectacles Selene Castrovilla,2025-01-21 Did you know that George Washington had a secret He wore glasses While initially embarrassed by his reliance on this reading aid Washington's spectacles proved to be nothing short of spectacular in this charming funny and little known picture book story from American history The Revolutionary War was over but Washington's officers had not received their wages from the Continental Congress in years Afraid they would never get their money the officers planned to storm Congress and demand it right away Luckily George Washington found out about the plot just in time He delivered a passionate speech to his men but they were unaffected It was only when he struggled to read aloud a letter from Congress and had to put on his glasses that they realized how much he had sacrificed for their country along with them The officers dropped their plan and pledged their loyalty to America and to Washington Selene Castrovilla's carefully researched yet playful prose and Jenn Harney's energetic original illustrations bring George Washington's more human side to life in this humorous but important story about true American loyalty

After taking two months to recover the battleship gray colt would go on to win twenty six of thirty races during his career with two second place finishes and one third He was voted the tenth greatest Thoroughbred of the twentieth century according to Blood Horse magazine and A Century of Champions places him ninth in the world and third among North American horses even ahead of the renowned Man o War This horse biography tells the story of the honest and not so glamorous colorful characters surrounding the champion including Bud Delp the brash and cocky trainer who was distrustful of the Kentucky establishment and Ron Franklin the nineteen year old jockey who buckled under the stress and pressure associated with fame and how they witnessed firsthand the splendor and triumphs of Spectacular Bid Including contemporary newspaper accounts of Bid s exploits and interviews with key players in his story this is an encompassing look into the legacy of one of horse racing s true A Spectacular Leap Jennifer H. Lansbury, 2014-04-01 When high jumper Alice Coachman won the high jump champions title at the 1941 national championships with a spectacular leap African American women had been participating in competitive sport for close to twenty five years Yet it would be another twenty years before they would experience something akin to the national fame and recognition that African American men had known since the 1930s the days of Joe Louis and Jesse Owens From the 1920s when black women athletes were confined to competing within the black community through the heady days of the late twentieth century when they ruled the world of women s track and field African American women found sport opened the door to a better life However they also discovered that success meant challenging perceptions that many Americans both black and white held of them Through the stories of six athletes Coachman Ora Washington Althea Gibson Wilma Rudloph Wyomia Tyus and Jackie Joyner Kersee Jennifer H Lansbury deftly follows the emergence of black
