Phonological Encoding and Monitoring in Normal and Pathological Speech Robert J. Hartsuiker, 2005 This book reports recent research on mechanisms of normal formulation and control in speaking and in language disorders such as stuttering aphasia and verbal dyspraxia The theoretical claim is that such disorders result both from deficits in a component of the language production system and interactions between this component and the system that monitors for errors and undertakes a corrective behaviour In particular the book focuses on phonological encoding in speech the construction of a phonetic plan for utterances on verbal self monitoring checking for correctness and initiating corrective action if necessary and on interactions between these processes Bringing together sixteen original chapters by leading international researchers this volume represents a coherent statement of current thinking in this exciting field The aim is to show how psycholinguistic models of normal speech processing can be applied to the study of impaired speech production This book will prove invaluable to any researcher student or speech therapist looking to bridge the gap between the latest advances in theory and the implications of these advances for language and speech pathology Cognitive Neuropsychological Approaches to Spoken Word Production Lyndsey Nickels, 2002 The papers in this volume all examine the nature of spoken word production in aphasia and how this can inform current theories of language processing It comprises 7 papers by some of the foremost researchers in the field The first paper in the volume is an introduction by the editor Dr Lyndsey Nickels which reviews the state of the art of the cognitive neuropsychology of spoken word production both in terms of theory and methodology The individual papers address a range of topical issues including the levels of processing in speech production Lambon Ralph Moriarty Sage et al Wilshire the nature of the interaction between levels of processing Goldrick and effects of different factors on naming word class and context Berndt Burton Haendiges phonemic and orthographic cues Best Herbert Hickin Osborne lexical stress Howard Smith Taken together this volume provides the reader with an insight into the cutting edge of research in spoken word production Slips of the Tongue and Language Production Anne Cutler, 2011-09-06 No detailed description available for Slips of the Tongue and Language Production Linguistic Structure in Language Processing G.N. Carlson, M.K. Tanenhaus, 2012-12-06 The papers in this volume are intended to exemplify the state of experimental psycholinguistics in the middle to later 1980s Our overriding impression is that the field has come a long way since the earlier work of the 1950s and 1960s and that the field has emerged with a renewed strength from a difficult period in the 1970s Not only are the theoretical issues more sharply defined and integrated with existing issues from other domains modularity being one such example but the experimental techniques employed are much more sophisticated thanks to the work of numerous psychologists not necessarily interested in psycholinguistics and thanks to improving technologies unavailable a few years ago for instance eye trackers We selected papers that provide a coherent overall picture of existing techniques and issues The volume is organized much as one might organize an introductory linguistics course beginning with sound and working up to meaning Indeed the first paper Rebecca Treiman's begins with consideration of syllable structure a phonological consideration and the last Alan Garnham's exemplifies some work on the interpretation of pronouns a semantic matter In between are found works concentrating on morphemes lexical structures and syntax The cross section represented in this volume is by necessity incomplete since we focus only on experimental work directed at understanding how adults comprehend and produce language We do not include any works on language acquisition first or second Language and Communication Jack C. Richards, R.W. Schmidt, 2014-06-06 Presents eight specially written chapters which provide a coherent survey of major issues in the study of language and communication and which show how these are related to questions of practical concern in the learning and teaching of second and foreign languages The issues discussed have been selected primarily for their relevance to applied linguistics and there is a unifying interest in how language reflects the communicative functions it performs as well as in the process involved in using language for communication Each chapter presents a self-contained survey of a central issue is prefaced by an introduction linking the different perspectives and is followed by discussion questions to aid effective use of the text in applied linguistics courses Spontaneous Speech Benjamin V.
