Heath, American Astronautical Society, 1991 Space Safety and Rescue, 1994 American Astronautical Society, International Academy of Astronautics, 1996-01-01 Through Optimization of Aerospace Vehicle Trajectories by the Pontryagin Maximum Principle Alexander S. Filatyev, Vyacheslav G. Petukhov, 2025-05-28 This monograph investigates the trajectory optimization problems of low and finite thrust aerospace vehicles and spacecraft using an indirect method based on the Pontryagin maximum principle providing a methodological basis for the construction of numerical techniques that are superior in versatility and accuracy to direct methods This book provides a theoretical explanation of the approaches used and also an extensive gallery of the results of practical numerical studies The problem of boundary value problem convergence has been largely overcome which has made it possible to practically automate the optimization of trajectories and to achieve a qualitative generalization with a number of fundamentally new results Examples of practical optimization of branching trajectories of complex dynamics systems with finite and continual sets of branches in deterministic and stochastic statements with control constraints and phase constraints of various orders are demonstrated An emphasis is placed on the consistent application of methods of numerical continuation with respect to a parameter to solve various problems in the flight mechanics of spacecraft with an electric propulsion system EPS The problems considered include the optimization of direct interplanetary flights of spacecraft with thrusters having limited power or limited thrust of interplanetary flights of such spacecraft using gravity assisted maneuvers of multi orbit interorbital transfers of spacecraft with limited thrust EPS As a result it was possible to develop a set of numerical continuation methods for solving a wide range of optimization problems for spacecraft trajectories with EPS with improved characteristics in terms of convergence and performance This monograph also contains a description of many pitfalls in solving a wide range of problems of optimizing the trajectories of aerospace vehicles and recipes for effectively overcoming them Space Debris, 2002 A Human Factors Evaluation of a Methodology for Pressurized Crew Module Acceptability for Zero-gravity Ingress of Spacecraft Merri J. Sanchez, 2000 This project aimed to develop a methodology for evaluating performance and acceptability characteristics of the pressurized crew module volume suitability for zero gravity g ingress of a spacecraft and to evaluate the operational acceptability of the NASA crew return vehicle CRV for zero g ingress of astronaut crew volume for crew tasks and general crew module and seat layout No standard or methodology has been established for evaluating volume acceptability in human spaceflight vehicles Volume affects astronauts ability to ingress and egress the vehicle and to maneuver in and perform critical operational tasks inside the vehicle Much research has been conducted on aircraft ingress egress and rescue in order to establish military and civil aircraft standards However due to the extremely limited number of human rated spacecraft this topic has been unaddressed The NASA CRV was used for this study

The prototype vehicle can return a 7 member crew from the International Space Station in an emergency The vehicle s internal arrangement must be designed to facilitate rapid zero g ingress zero g maneuverability ease of one g egress and rescue and ease of operational tasks in multiple acceleration environments A full scale crew module mockup was built and outfitted with representative adjustable seats crew equipment and a volumetrically equivalent hatch Human factors testing was conducted in three acceleration environments using ground based facilities and the KC 135 aircraft Performance and acceptability measurements were collected Data analysis was conducted using analysis of variance and nonparametric techniques
