Style And Society Architectural Ideology In Britain 18351914:

The Battle of the Styles Bernard Porter, 2011-03-17 The present day Foreign Office in Whitehall is an imposing building whose genesis is bizarre In 1857 a competition was held to pick an architect which provoked a huge row between the rival Classical and Gothic schools which a Goth George Gilbert Scott won but was then forced to re design in Classical The circumstances surrounding this fiasco furnish the starting point for this book which then goes on to analyse the debate that preceded this decision for the light it sheds on the complex nature of British culture and society then Among issues raised were contemporary and conflicting understandings of Britain's or England's national and imperial identities of religion and morality of history modernity and progress and of class and gender The debate offers an unusual insight into the relationship between all these matters and high culture generally This account of it should be of great value to cultural and social historians as well as to any architectural historians interested in the broader historical context surrounding this and other great monuments of the time

Charles Robert Cockerell, Architect in Time Anne Bordeleau, 2016-04-15 Speed acceleration and rapid change characterize our world and as we design and construct buildings that are to last at least a few decades and sometimes even centuries how can architecture continue to act as an important cultural signifier Focusing on how an important nineteenth century architect addressed the already shifting relation between architecture time and history this book offers insights on issues still relevant today the struggle between imitation and innovation the definition or rejection of aesthetic experience the grounds of architectural judgment who decides and how or fundamentally how to act i.e. build when there is no longer a single grand narrative but a plurality of possible histories Six drawings provide the foundation of an itinerary through Charles Robert Cockerell's conception of architecture and into the depths of drawings and buildings Born in England in 1788 Cockerell sketched as a Grand Tourist he charted architectural history as Royal Academy Professor he drew to build to exhibit to understand the past and to learn from it publishing his last work in 1860 three years before his death Under our scrutiny his drawings become thresholds into the nineteenth century windows into the architect's conception of architecture and time complex documents of past and projected constructions great examples that reveal a kinetic approach to ornamentation and the depth of architectural representation

Land of Stone Roger Emmerson, 2022-12-06 Welcome to a journey of remarkable buildings and remarkable thoughts about these buildings shaped as they are by deep time modern ideas and Scottish culture Readers are sure to see new vistas in the land of stone open before them From the

Foreword by PROFESSOR ANDREW PATRIZIO What makes Scottish architecture Scottish What ideas drive Scottish architecture What has modern architecture in Scotland meant to the Scots Ever since the granny tops rattling and clanking in the wind to draw smoke up the tenemental flues from open coal fires caught my attention as a three year old architecture and its many parts purposes processes and procedures has fascinated me For me architecture has always had profound significance Land of Stone seeks to disengage widely held conceptions of what a Scottish architecture superficially looks like and to focus on the ideas and events philosophical political practical and personal that inspired architects and their clients to create the cities towns villages and buildings we cherish today Transformative Beauty Amy

Woodson-Boulton,2012-03-21 Why did British industrial cities build art museums By exploring the histories of the municipal art museums in Birmingham Liverpool and Manchester Transformative Beauty examines the underlying logic of the Victorian art museum movement These museums attempted to create a space free from the moral and physical ugliness of industrial capitalism Deeply engaged with the social criticism of John Ruskin reformers created a new prominent urban institution a domesticated public space that not only aimed to provide refuge from the corrosive effects of industrial society but also provided a remarkably unified secular alternative to traditional religion Woodson Boulton raises provocative questions about the meaning and use of art in relation to artistic practice urban development social justice education and class In today s context of global austerity and shrinking government support of public cultural institutions this book is a timely consideration of arts policy and purposes in modern society The Environmental Tradition Dr Dean Hawkes,Dean Hawkes,2013-12-16

This text brings together a unique collection of writing by a leading researcher and critic which outlines the evolution of the environmental dimension of architectural theory and practice in the past twenty five years It deals with the transformation of the environmental design field which was brought about by the growth of energy awareness in the 1970s and 1980s and places environmental issues in the broader theoretical and historical context in architecture Architectural Excursions

Donald L. Johnson,Donald Langmead,2000-08-30 Soon after 1900 in both North America and Europe the evolution from the tradition of Mediterranean and Gallic architectural styles to modernism began This phenomenon was due in part to American industrial architecture and the work of Frank Lloyd Wright Wright s building and architectural treatises of 1898 1908 with the additional help of Dutch propaganda on his behalf significantly influenced European practitioners and theorists European architecture within and outside of Holland reflects an adaptation of Wright s theories along with the structural determinism of American industrial buildings With new evidence and fresh analysis culled from Dutch and American archives personal correspondence and professional material this study examines the weight of Wright s works and words and those of the Dutchmen H P Berlage Theo van Doesburg Jan Wils J J P Oud William Dudok and Hendrik Theodor Wijdeveld This new insight on the effects of Wright s architectural theories and designs coupled with an extensive guide for further research will attract art and architecture scholars and historians on both sides of the Atlantic and will also be of interest to social historians artists and architects Events and new theories including the assertion that Hendrik Theodor Wijdeveld was the catalytic source behind Wright's Taliesin Fellowship established in 1932 are presented in clear accessible language Tied to the text are numerous visual presentations of significant designs and buildings The Architect Spiro Kostof, 2000 The Architect traces the role of the profession across the centuries and in different cultures showing the architect both as designer and as mediator between the client and the builder Architecture in Transition Kelly Crossman, 1987 The world of Canadian architecture was transformed during the years before 1900 New technologies such as the steel frame changed the way buildings were constructed new styles such as the Richardsonian Romanesque changed the way buildings looked and the development of the Canadian economy meant that new types of buildings were required Many of the public buildings banks houses hotels department stores and factories constructed during these years determined the character of Canadian cities for the next half century Cities Built to Music Michael Bright, 1984 In August of 1861 a congress was convened in Antwerp to consider why it was that the nineteenth century had adopted no distinctive architectural style as its own That such a meeting took place is of substantially greater importance than any business conducted and resolutions passed by the delegates for it suggests the profound dissatisfaction with the state of architecture in Europe that pervaded the continent at the time In England the chief critic of the motley assortment of disharmonious styles was A W N Pugin who in 1843 declared that architecture along with the other arts was passing through a transitional state the phrase was to recur over and over again throughout the century in a variety of contexts an aesthetic wasteland in which following the decay of the Renaissance an anarchic individualism fueled by a runaway eclecticism and a shoddy reliance on shams and disguises was ultimately to prevail Later in the same decade John Ruskin was to propose a stringent indeed a radical reform Professor Bright undertakes an etiological explanation of why the Gothic style was able to satisfy the artistic expectations of the Victorians He dismisses as only partly adequate the frequently offered answers the religious which points to the intimate relations between Revivalist architects and the Ecclesiologists and between Pugin and Roman Catholicism and the literary which relies on the immense popularity of the novels of Sir Walter Scott and the mania for all things medieval they inspired Rather he finds in the return to a style that was dominant before the Renaissance and in the rejection of the nineteenth century's earlier preference for the neoclassical a reflection in architecture of the generally troubled state of Victorian society so apparent in the other arts of the period Matthew Arnold's ignorant armies clash by night and Tennyson's Arthur saw not whom he fought in the dim weird battle of the west John Stuart Mills identifies as the first of the leading peculiarities of the present age that it is an age of transition Mankind have outgrown old institutions and old doctrines and have not acquired new ones Carlyle laments The Old has passed away but alas the New appears not in its stead Restlessness uncertainty and confusion abound and the idea is often repeated throughout the century that the momentum of change far from slowing to the settled condition from which new and universal values can emerge continues to accelerate at an alarming and vertiginous rate that cause Thomas Arnold to comment that we have been living as it were the life of three hundred years in thirty and that left his son twenty years later Wandering between two worlds one dead The other powerless to be born For Matthew Arnold it was culture that would provide the unity the Scholar Gypsy s one aim one business one desire that was to be the cure for this strange disease of modern life With its sick hurry its divided aims It was unity too a singleness of aim of a devotion to and community of effort in the advancement of art that Sir George Gilbert Scott urged as its president on his colleagues in the Institute of British Architects For Pugin and a host of other artists and critics of art and society unity lay in revival of the Gothic

The English School (Volumes I and II) Malcolm Seaborne,Roy Lowe,2022-07-30 Britain has a rich heritage of school buildings dating from the later Middle Ages to the present day While some of these schools have attracted the attention of architectural historians they have not previously been considered from the educational viewpoint Even schools of little or no architectural interest are important sociologically since the changing architecture of schools reflects changing ideas about how children should be educated and organized for teaching purposes Documentary material relating to education is often fragmentary and buildings may thus constitute the only real source of knowledge about the development of particular schools and can also throw light on general educational history Originally published in 1971 and 1977 these books are therefore not only a major contribution to architectural history but also a study in the development of educational ideas and practices from the fourteenth to the twentieth century The English School Malcolm Seaborne, Roy Lowe, 2020-09-10 Britain has a rich heritage of school buildings dating from the later Middle Ages to the present day While some of these schools have attracted the attention of architectural historians they have not previously been considered from the educational viewpoint Even schools of little or no architectural interest are important sociologically since the changing architecture of schools reflects changing ideas about how children should be educated and organized for teaching purposes In this second volume originally published in 1977 Malcolm Seaborne and Roy Lowe carry the historical record into our own time Like its predecessor the volume studies the development of school architecture and its influence on the organization of the school and relates architectural questions to the educational and social forces which influence the design of schools The authors have chosen representative examples which illustrate the main trends in the development of school design and construction
