

The background of the cover is a black and white photograph. On the left, the dark hull and two large funnels of a ship are visible, partially obscured by a large, white, turbulent splash of water that dominates the center of the image. The water appears to be churning or the ship is moving through it. In the lower right, a small boat with a person is visible on the water. The sky is overcast and cloudy.

Confederate Naval Forces on Western Waters R. Thomas Campbell,2011-04-11 No body of water was more vital to the Confederacy s efforts in the Civil War than the Mississippi River and its tributaries Though the Confederate Congress declared the Mississippi free and open to all states north and south the Union launched plans for an effective blockade of the 1700 miles of Southern coastline coupled with a strong naval and army thrust down the Mississippi Valley from Cairo Illinois to the Gulf of Mexico To defend the river and to prevent Union forces from advancing the South would require a strong naval force There was only one problem with the strategy The Confederacy had no navy On February 25 1861 Confederate president Jefferson Davis nominated Stephen R Mallory to be secretary of the newly formed Confederate States Navy Mallory faced significant obstacles no shipyards few skilled craftsmen and machinists and a lack of production facilities to process raw materials Mallory was able to overcome the many shortcomings to build a formidable navy but the efforts in the Mississippi theater were hamstrung by a disjointed command structure and interservice bickering Despite these problems the Confederate Navy contested the Union forces at every turn The history of Confederate naval forces on the western waters is a story of desperation intrigue ineptitude and humiliating defeats interspersed with moments of courage innovation resourcefulness and a few hard earned victories

The Vicksburg Campaign, 1863 Chris Mackowski, 2025-04-30 A fully illustrated account of the Vicksburg Campaign including modern color photography and covering the river war inland battles seige operations and more The 14 month campaign to regain the control of Mississippi River by capturing Vicksburg Mississippi stands as the prime example of how the Civil War would be fought and won The Federal government s policy of blockading the southern ports and controlling the inland waterways would only be successful with total control of the country s largest river Technological advances created by the war itself and used by progressive thinking Federal and Confederate commanders ensured that this vital Southern supply and logistics base would be the focal point of the war on the western waters Ulysses S Grant who had risen to fame as one of the North s prominent heroes early in the war boldly concluded that Vicksburg would be the next nut to crack in the Federal policy for control of the Mississippi River Understanding that only a strong relationship with US Navy could ensure the success of Vicksburg s surrender Grant found a man as bold and daring as himself in David Dixon Porter and his Mississippi Squadron of ironclad gunboats and fleet of vessels These two commanders and their trusted subordinates would frustrate John C Pemberton s attempts to defend Mississippi and eastern Louisiana for the Confederacy A lack of experience in commanding such an important assignment limited resources poor staffing and a Confederate government consumed with the war in the east ensured Pemberton s position would be insurmountable as the Confederacy s tenuous hold on the Mississippi River began to fall apart
