Maria Boletsi

Telling Time Levi Strauss Ford Lessing Benjamin De Man Wordsworth Rilke:

Telling Time Carol Jacobs, 1993 Which time is the condition of the telling in works by Levi Strauss Ford Madox Ford Lessing Benjamin de Man Wordsworth and Rilke Despite the cultural and historical disparities among the texts Jacobs argues each is linked by a set of critical and theoretical issues concerning time and language She examines how these writers situate their work in relation to the past designating both their positions with respect to it and the implications of their pretensions

The Sexual Politics of Time Susannah Radstone, 2007-12-03 Looking at a diverse range of texts including Marilyn French's The Women's Room Philip Roth's Patrimony the writings of Walter Benjamin and Fredric Jameson and films such as Cinema Paradiso Susannah Radstone argues that though time has been foregrounded in theories of postmodernism those theories have ignored the question of time and sexual difference The Sexual Politics of Time proposes that the contemporary western world has witnessed a shift from the age of confession to the era of memory In a series of chapters on confession nostalgia the memories of boyhood film and the memoir Susannah Radstone sets out to complicate this claim Developing her argument through psychoanalytic theory she proposes that an attention to time and sexual difference raises questions not only about the analysis and characterization of texts but also about how cultural epochs are mapped through time The Sexual Politics of Time will be of interest to students and researchers of time memory difference and cultural change in subjects such as Media and Cultural Studies Sociology Film Studies

Feeling in Theory Rei Terada, 2009-07-01 Because emotion is assumed to depend on subjectivity the death of the subject described in recent years by theorists such as Derrida de Man and Deleuze would also seem to mean the death of feeling This revolutionary work transforms the burgeoning interdisciplinary debate on emotion by suggesting instead a positive relation between the death of the subject and the very existence of emotion Reading the writings of Derrida and de Man theorists often seen as emotionally contradictory and cold Terada finds grounds for construing emotion as nonsubjective This project offers fresh interpretations of deconstruction's most important texts and of Continental and Anglo American philosophers from Descartes to Deleuze and Dennett At the same time it revitalizes poststructuralist theory by deploying its methodologies in a new field the philosophy of emotion to reach a startling conclusion if we really were subjects we would have no emotions at all Engaging debates in philosophy literary criticism psychology and cognitive science from a poststructuralist and deconstructive perspective Terada's work is essential for the renewal of critical thought in our day

Telling Time Stuart Sherman, 1996 In Telling Time Stuart Sherman argues that innovations in prose emerged with this technological breakthrough enabling authors to recount the new kind of time by which England was learning to live and work

Theory and the Disappearing Future Tom Cohen, Claire Colebrook, J. Hillis Miller, with a manuscript by Paul de Man, 2011-11-10 Paul de Man is often associated with an era of high theory an era it is argued may now be coming to a close This book written by three leading contemporary scholars includes both a transcript and facsimile print of a previously unpublished text by de Man of his handwritten notes for a lecture on Walter Benjamin

Challenging and relevant this volume presents de Man's work as a critical resource for dealing with the most important questions of the twenty first century and argues for the place of theory within it The humanities are flooded with crises of globalism capitalism and terrorism contemporary narratives of financial collapse viral annihilation species extinction environmental disaster and terrorist destruction Cohen Colebrook and Miller draw out the implications of these crises and their narratives and reflecting on this work by de Man explore the limits of political thinking of historical retrieval and the ethics of archives and cultural memory

Claude Lévi-Strauss Christopher Johnson,2003-02-27 L vi Strauss is one of the major intellectual figures of the twentieth century His theory of structuralism has been influential not only in anthropology but across the entire field of the humanities and social sciences This book looks at the formative period of his career from the 1940s to the early 1960s where he attempts to define both his own place in anthropology and the place of anthropology in the wider context of the human sciences in France Through a close reading of key texts Christopher Johnson provides an introduction to key aspects of L vi Strauss thought at the same time posing more general questions concerning the construction of theory and the different modes of conceptualization that inform theory Johnson looks at the ideological and autobiographical dimensions of L vi Strauss work and demonstrates how the impact of structuralism as an intellectual movement has clearly been greater than the sum of its theoretical parts

Religion and the Individual: Belief, Practice, and Identity Douglas J. Davies,Michael J. Thate,2018-07-05 This book is a printed edition of the Special Issue Religion and the Individual Belief Practice and Identity that was published in Religions

Barbarism and Its Discontents Maria Boletsi,2013-01-30 Barbarism and civilization form one of the oldest and most rigid oppositions in Western history According to this dichotomy barbarism functions as the negative standard through which civilization fosters its self definition and superiority by labeling others barbarians Since the 1990s and especially since 9 11 these terms have become increasingly popular in Western political and cultural rhetoric a rhetoric that divides the world into forces of good and evil This study intervenes in this recent trend and interrogates contemporary and historical uses of barbarism arguing that barbarism also has a disruptive insurgent potential Boletsi recasts barbarism as a productive concept finding that it is a common thread in works of literature art and theory By dislodging barbarism from its conventional contexts this book reclaims barbarism's edge and proposes it as a useful theoretical tool

Words of Light Eduardo Cadava,2018-06-05 Here Eduardo Cadava demonstrates that Walter Benjamin articulates his conception of history through the language of photography Focusing on Benjamin's discussions of the flashes and images of history he argues that the questions raised by this link between photography and history touch on issues that belong to the entire trajectory of his writings the historical and political consequences of technology the relation between reproduction and mimesis images and history remembering and forgetting allegory and mourning and visual and linguistic representation The book establishes the photographic constellation of motifs and themes around which Benjamin organizes his texts and thereby becomes a lens through which we can begin to view his analysis of the convergence between the new technological media and a revolutionary concept of historical action and understanding. Written in the form of theses what Cadava calls snapshots in prose the book memorializes Benjamin's own aesthetic method of writing. It enacts a mode of conceiving history that is neither linear nor successive but rather discontinuous constructed from what Benjamin calls dialectical images. In this way it not only suggests the essential rapport between the fragmentary form of Benjamin's writing and his effort to write a history of modernity but it also skillfully clarifies the relation between Benjamin and his contemporaries the relation between fascism and aesthetic ideology. It gives us the most complete picture to date of Benjamin's reflections on history.
