Credit Markets for the Poor Patrick Bolton,Howard Rosenthal,2005-06-30 Access to credit is an important means of providing people with the opportunity to make a better life for themselves Loans are essential for most people who want to purchase a home start a business pay for college or weather a spell of unemployment Yet many people in poor and minority communities regardless of their creditworthiness find credit hard to come by making the climb out of poverty extremely difficult How dire are the lending markets in these communities and what can be done to improve access to credit for disadvantaged groups In Credit Markets for the Poor editors Patrick Bolton and Howard Rosenthal and an expert team of economists political scientists and legal and business scholars tackle these questions with shrewd analysis and a wealth of empirical data Credit Markets for the Poor opens by examining what credit options are available to poor households Economist John Caskey profiles how weak credit options force many working families into a disastrous cycle of short term high interest loans in order to sustain themselves between paychecks L ic Sadoulet explores the reasons that community

lending organizations which have been so successful in developing countries have failed in more advanced economies He argues the obstacles that have inhibited community lending groups in industrialized countries such as a lack of institutional credibility and the high cost of establishing lending networks can be overcome if banks facilitate the community lending process and establish a system of repayment insurance Credit Markets for the Poor also examines how legal institutions affect the ability of the poor to borrow Daniela Fabbri and Mario Padula argue that well meaning provisions making it more difficult for lenders to collect on defaulted loans are actually doing a disservice to the poor in credit markets They find that in areas with lax legal enforcement of debt agreements credit markets for the poor are underdeveloped because lenders are unwilling to take risks on issuing credit or will do so only at exorbitant interest rates Timothy Bates looks at programs that facilitate small business development and finds that they have done little to reduce poverty He argues that subsidized business creation programs may lure inexperienced households into entrepreneurship in areas where little profitable investment is possible hence setting them up for failure With clarity and insightful analysis Credit Markets for the Poor demonstrates how weak credit markets are impeding the social and economic mobility of the needy By detailing the many disadvantages that impoverished people face when seeking to borrow this important new volume highlights a significant national problem and offers solutions for the future

Martindale-Hubbell (Firm),2003-04 Growth from Chaos Michael Pettus,2003-12-30 We live in a chaotic world Some of the chaos results from poor decision making e g Enron Arthur Andersen WorldCom Yet other aspects of chaos war terrorist attacks etc are beyond a firm s control This book demonstrates that firm growth is more dependent on how a firm develops its resource base over time Examining actual firm growth in several industries with a focus on trucking the airline industry and the North American railroad industry Pettus shows that a specific resource sequencing leads to higher firm growth than other sequencing patterns This sequencing pattern is similar across transportation industries and the pattern may be applicable to other industries Decisions that firms make with respect to how resources are developed must balance the need for growth in the current time period with the need for growth over the long term Firms can build sustainable growth by developing resources in a specific sequence in essence firms have control over their growth even when confronted with ever changing environmental conditions Official Congressional Directory, 110th Congress Joint Committee on Printing United States Congress,2007-10 Civil War Flags of Tennessee Stephen Douglas Cox,2024-01-12 Civil War Flags of Tennessee provides information on all known Confederate and Union flags of the state and showcases the Civil War flag collection of the Tennessee State Museum This volume is organized into three parts Part 1 includes interpretive essays by scholars such as Greg Biggs Robert B Bradley Howard Michael Madaus and Fonda Ghiardi Thomsen that address how flags were used in the Civil War their general history their makers and preservation issues among other themes Part 2 is a catalogue of Tennessee Confederate flags Part 3 is a catalogue of Tennessee Union flags The catalogues present a collection of some 200 identified extant Civil War flags and another 300 flags that are known through secondary and archival sources all of which are exhaustively documented Appendices follow the two catalogue sections and include detailed information on several Confederate and Union flags associated with the states of Mississippi North Carolina and Indiana that are also contained in the Tennessee State Museum collection Complete with nearly 300 color illustrations and meticulous notes on textiles and preservation efforts this volume is much more than an encyclopedic log of Tennessee related Civil War flags Stephen Cox and his team also weave the history behind the flags throughout the catalogues including the stories of the women who stitched them the regiments that bore them and the soldiers and bearers who served under them and carried them Civil War Flags of Tennessee is an eloquent hybrid between guidebook and chronicle and the scholar the Civil War enthusiast and the general reader will all enjoy what can be found in its pages Unprecedented in its variety and depth Cox s work fills an important historiographical void within the greater context of the American Civil War This text demonstrates the importance of Tennessee state heritage and the value of public history reminding readers that each generation has the honor and responsibility of learning from and preserving the history that has shaped us all and in doing so honoring the lives of the soldiers and civilians who sacrificed and persevered
